JAP MIDWAY DEFEAT BLOCKS BLOW AT U. S.

Washington Feels Mainland Is Now Safe.

By The Associated Press

The fruits of the great American naval victory at Midway began to take shape.

In Washington, informed quarters declared the triumph was so complete as almost to eliminate the possibility that the enemy would risk venturing again into Pacific zones where he would be a target for land-based American aircraft.

In Pearl Harbor, the feeling prevailed that the Japanese defeat had removed any threat of invasion against the United States mainland, at least for the predictable future.

BOYS STATE TO OPEN AT O.W.U.

Five from Marion Among 700 Expected for Opening Session Saturday.

Five Marion boys and nearly 700 others from all over the state will gather at Ohio Wesleyan university campus at Delaware Saturday to open the seventh annual Buckeye Boys' State, sponsored by the state American Legion organization to train 16 and 17 year old Ohio boys in a practical school of democratic government.

Gray chapel at the university will be the center of many activities, and other halls will be used for group sessions arranged to keep the boys busy most of their 10 days together.

Marion Group

Marion boys who will attend through arrangements made by Bird-McGinnis post of the American Legion and through sponsorship of Marion organizations are:

Harry Zink of 429 South Prospect street, sponsored by Buckeye Aerie of Eagles.

Francis W. Bacon of 136 Homer street, sponsored by Steel Workers Organizing committee.

Donald R. Allen of 668 Uncapher avenue, sponsored by the Rotary club.

Wesley Bishop of Morral, sponsored by Bird-McGinnis post of the American Legion.

Jack Holt of 708 South Prospect street, sponsored by the Lions club.

A number of Marion Legion men and others interested in the program will visit the Boys' State sessions. J. W. Llewellyn, chairman of the Bird-McGinnis post Boys' State committee, said visitors are welcome at all times during the 10 day period.

How It Works

When the boys arrive Saturday, they will become members of two mythical political parties, living in the 15 cities and three counties of Boys' State, electing all their own officers, making laws through their own legislature, commissioners and councils, and studying taxes and tax needs.

The carefully compiled curriculum has been brought up to date, and the governor of Boys' State, who will be elected Monday morning, will add a director of the council of defense to his appointment list.

Serving as president of Boys' States for the sixth year is Paul E. Kightlinger, Warren attorney.

A comprehensive recreation program also has been planned for the boys.

LONDON SEES BLOW AT NAZIS ON 2ND FRONT

British Sources Say Attack Is Clearly Indicated by Three-Power Agreement.

By DREW MIDDLETON
AP War Correspondent

With the United States, Britain and Russia united as never before, allied hopes of striking a decisive blow in the war this year appeared in London today to be predicated on a bold invasion of western Europe.

That allied strategy calls for such a move was clearly indicated by the announcement yesterday that Washington, London and Moscow are agreed on the urgency of opening a second front to crush Adolf Hitler's armies between two forces.

The announcement came amid indications that Hitler was massing his legions for an all-out effort to smash Russia with all possible speed.

London observers believed, however, that Russia's ability to withstand the shock would be strengthened by sure knowledge that powerful help was on the way and that Hitler's operations would be impeded by the necessity of meeting the looming threat in the west.

Three Important Factors

Already three military factors were reported to have forced the Germans to frenzied efforts to secure western Europe against invasion:

1—Steady reinforcement of American forces in northern Ireland, plus the growing efficiency of the British army.

2—Arrival of a powerful American battle squadron in British waters to bolster the royal navy's home fleet.

3—The imminent addition of American bomber squadrons to the RAF, which already is master of the skies over the channel and which has demonstrated its ability to hurl more than 1,000 planes a night against German industrial centers.

The Germans' worries have been augmented further by British commando raids which have shown their coastal defenses

STATE TO CITE 2 NIGHT CLUBS

Reports City's Complaint Well-Founded; Clubs To Operate Pending Hearing.

George Hinklin, formerly of Marion, now district supervisor for the state liquor enforcement department, said in Columbus today that both the Mayfair and Royal night club proprietors will be cited before the state liquor board on charges they are not serving meals as is declared in their permits.

Mr. Hinklin's statement followed the reading of a report on the Marion clubs made by Inspector Earl Cullison Wednesday. He said Mr. Cullison had made a full report on the Marion club and that the report showed the complaint of city officials was well-founded.

The report, he said, revealed the equipment for serving meals is installed in both places but is not being used. Mr. Hinklin said no date for a hearing on the case has yet been set but that it will be soon.

In the meantime, the night clubs will be allowed to continue operating. If found guilty of the charge, the liquor permits for both places will be revoked Mr. Hinklin said.

The complaint to the state department was made by Police Chief Marks.

County Trying To Reach June War Bond Quota by Monday

The Marion County War Savings staff, in an intensive campaign Flag day week-end, will shoot toward the June quota of $191,000 E. J. Schoenlaub, chairman of the staff, said today in connection with the Allied Victory parade Sunday afternoon and the coming to Marion of 10 army jeeps to participate in the Flag day demonstration.

The war savings staff hopes that Flag day week-end, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, the entire June quota can be reached.

Sunday afternoon, starting at 2 and continuing until the Allied Victory parade is over, stamps will be sold and pledges will be taken for bonds to be purchased Monday at eight stands set up at strategic points along the parade route.

Arrangements for the sales stands were made by R. T. Lewis, in cooperation with the banks and federal loan companies and Miss Maud Gorham, chairman of the women's division of the War Savings staff.

The army jeeps, sent here on a tour of 17 Ohio cities, will visit the stands from time to time and will give free rides in jeeps to every one pledging to purchase a bond of the $25 denomination or larger. "Buy a bond and ride in a jeep" will be their slogan.

In the jeeps will be 20 young women of Marion, dressed in the costume of the Minute Man who decorates every war stamp. The women will sell stamps and take pledges for bonds. Arrangements for their participation was being completed this afternoon by members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce which will sponsor the jeeps' appearance in Marion.

YOUTH DROWNS IN GRAVEL PIT WEST OF CITY

Kester Miller, 16, Loses Life When He Steps Off Ledge Into Deep Water.

Sixteen-year-old Karl Kenneth Kester Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Miller of one mile west of Marion on the Harding highway, was accidentally drowned yesterday afternoon when he fell into the sand and gravel pit on the Airport road near his home.

Two companions told deputy sheriffs the boy, who was unable to swim, was wading on a shallow ledge in the pit and that he stepped into a deep drop-off. They said he went under before they were able to get to him. One of the boys said he dived in search of the youth but was unable to locate him.

The sheriff's office was informed of the accident about 3:30 Deputy sheriffs and two members of the Marion fire department went immediately to the scene. They, together with eight or ten men from the neighborhood, searched for the boy's body until it was found at 7:30 p. m.

In 20 Feet of Water

Deputy Sheriff LeRoy Retterer said the body was found about 50 or 60 feet from the north shore of the pit in approximately 20 feet of water. The Hughes ambulance was called to get the body.

Members of the Marion Boat club who furnished the boats from which the four-hour search was conducted were: Dwight Ansley, Walt B. Horne, Harley Kelley, Charles Pike, Jack Frylie and Sheldon Dodds. City firemen Jack Ganoe and Charles Erow brought grappling equipment to the scene.

County Coroner Richard T. Morgan gave a verdict of death caused by strangulation resulting from accidental drowning.

Friends and relatives of the boy said he was known generally by his third name, Kester.

Attended Campbell School

The youth was a member of the Christian Gospel tabernacle on Bennett street and attended the Campbell school.

He was born in Marion county on March 14, 1926 to Wilbur Miller, a native of Athens county, and Cora Bell Ward Miller, a native of Delaware county.

WPA APPROPRIATION GOES TO SENATE

Funds Voted After Effort To Kill Agency Fails.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 12—A $335,000,000 appropriation bill to continue the WPA on a war-curtailed basis was sent to the senate today after the relief agency survived a desperate drive in the house to abolish it.

The new supply bill carried funds sufficient to employ an average of 400,000 a month, beginning July 1.

A two-day floor battle saw a Republican-sponsored attempt to cut the allocation by one-third and place supervision of relief directly with the states go down to defeat on a roll call vote of 183 to 140.

Only a few minutes earlier, administration forces had beaten back, 184 to 133, a move to prevent the WPA from starting any new projects except those certified as essential to the war effort.

A fight to abolish the WPA altogether, on the ground that it no longer was necessary because of the war's stimulus to industry, was lost by a teller's vote of 109 to 60.

As finally passed by a vote of 277 to 53, the measure bundled up direct appropriations of $280,000,000 plus reappropriations of $56,000,000 in relief funds unex-

Jeeps, Floats, Marchers on Flag Day Parade List

Final Arrangements Made for Marion's Patriotic Program, Set To Start at 4 P. M. Sunday.

Thousands of marchers, some 50 floats, 10 army jeeps, war machinery manufactured in Marion, machinery being used to build the Scioto Ordnance Plant and at least six planes of Marion squadron No. 515-2 of the Civil Air patrol were lined up today by grand marshals of Marion Allied Victory parade set for Sunday, at 4 p. m.

Sponsored by the Marion County War Savings staff and Marion business men to stimulate an unprecedented sale of $200,000 worth of war stamps and bonds over the Flag day week-end, the parade shaped up today as the biggest public demonstration Marion has seen in two decades.

Roy D. Moore of Canton, formerly of Marion, state administrator of the sale of war bonds and stamps, and Mrs. Moore will be in the reviewing stand if it is at all possible for them to come to Marion, according to a telegram received by E. J. Schoenlaub, chairman of the Marion County War Savings staff.

Grand marshals, C. C. Roberts, Major George Geran and T. E. Kinnear and Robert T. Mason, general chairman, stated emphatically today that the parade will move promptly at 4, forming on streets off West Center street and proceeding east to Main street and south to the Harding memorial.

Setting at Memorial

At the memorial the colors will be massed on the steps of the tomb and below them the bands will converge. Back of the bands the State Guard units from Marysville, Kenton and Delaware will mass. The grass plot between the two walks leading to the memorial will be reserved for the marchers.

Supt. E. E. Holt of the public schools has accepted the invitation to lead the thousands of men, women and children in repeating the pledge of allegiance. The massed bands, under the direction of Homer E. Huffman, public school music supervisor, will play the national anthem. L. G. Jones, public school music supervisor, will lead the crowd in singing the anthem. W. E. Orcutt has been named in charge of the program at the memorial.

More news about Flags and Flag Day on Page 11.

The ceremonies at the memorial have been arranged to briefly express the national spirit of patriotism and determination to win the war.

Reviewing Stand Site

The reviewing stand will be in front of the public library. The 20x10 feet structure will be built and decorated by the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., Louis E. Michel, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce reported, at a parade dinner meeting last night at Hotel Harding. The list of persons in the reviewing stand will not be completed until late Saturday. A broadcast description of the parade will be made over Station WMRN from the reviewing stand by Lou Marsh of the station staff.

Six planes of Marion squadron No. 515-2 of the Civil Air patrol, and possibly planes from squadrons at Lorain, Sandusky, Mansfield and Ashland, will fly over the parade, according to arrangements made by A. A. Freeman, squadron commander, and Richard E. Parish, executive officer of the squadron.

James R. Harrington of Mansfield, group commander, when contacted this week said he would notify the squadrons based in the other four cities under his command and request that they send planes.

Headquarters

Parade headquarters will be set up at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Marion-Reserve Power Co. terminal building on West Center street. Division marshals and chairmen or individuals may get last-minute instructions at the headquarters. Marshals' badges will be distributed at the headquarters.

When the parade reaches the memorial, floats that have been with marching units will move east on Vernon Heights boulevard and the long lines of industrial floats will move west though McKinley park, leaving the area in the immediate vicinity of the memorial open to the marchers and onlookers.

The committee today invited the general public to fall in behind the last division of the parade and make a large "citizens' division."

Judges who will award a plaque from the general committee to the best float in each division will be in the reviewing stand. The judges, as announced yesterday, will be Jerry Passen, Harold Carroll and Oscar Lusch.

Traffic Arrangements

Details of handling the traffic problem which will result from thousands of visitors pouring in from surrounding communities were worked out last night by Corp. E. H. Davey of the state patrol and Police Chief William E. Marks.

Parade Formation

City firemen, the colors and members of the parade staff will head the parade.

The divisions, marshals and points of formation follow:

Division 1—J. W. Llewellyn, marshal, Harding High school band, Ohio State Guard units and all ex-service men, form on West

GERMANS OPEN KHARKOV DRIVE

Von Bock's Attack Indicates Zero Hour at Hand for Summer Offensive.

By The Associated Press

Marshal Fedor Von Bock's armies were reported attacking today in a great new battle around Kharkov, the Soviet "Pittsburgh" in the Ukraine, amid indications that zero hour may be near for the long-heralded German summer offensive.

A bulletin from Nazi field headquarters said German troops east of Kharkov carried out successful attacks which were increasing in volume.

Tersely, the Soviet command acknowledged that the new German drive was making headway against bitter Russian resistance.

"During the day of June 11 in the Kharkov sector, our troops waged fierce defensive engagements against advancing enemy tanks and infantry," a Red army communique said. It added, however, that there had been no important changes overnight.

On the Crimean front, Soviet dispatches reported that the defenders of long-besieged Sevastopol, key Black sea naval base, were counter-attacking, improving some of their positions and bloodily repulsing fresh German assaults.

The Russian high command said nearly 15,000 Germans had been killed and more than 50 tanks destroyed in three days of fighting.

In the battle of North Africa, British and German armored forces clashed on the desert sands 25 miles below Tobruk following the withdrawal of free French troops from Bir Hacheim. Axis-captured southern anchor of the Main British defense system.

The Italians and Germans declared 1,000 Free French and British imperial troops were killed and more than 2,000 captured at Bir Hacheim, which fell early yesterday.

The Italian command acknowledged that RAF bombers pounded the Italian naval base at Taranto for the fourth night in a row. In the first three attacks, 41 persons were listed as killed.

NAVY REVEALS LOSS OF SHIP IN CORAL SEA

Destroyer and Tanker Also Go Down; Enemy Loses More Than 20 Craft.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 12—The navy announced today the loss of the U. S. Aircraft Carrier Lexington as a result of the battle of the Coral sea which prevented the Japanese from either invading or isolating Australia.

The loss was disclosed in connection with an official review of the navy's part in the entire Coral sea campaign, starting March 10 at New Guinea and running through May 8 when enemy aircraft inflicted such damage on the Lexington that several hours later she exploded and sunk with a relatively light loss of life.

The review showed that the Coral sea campaign, ending disastrously for the enemy, cost the Japanese more than 15 ships sunk, 2 more probably sunk and 20 damaged while the only American losses were the 33,000-ton Lexington, the tanker Neosho and the destroyer Sims.

A large part of the personnel from the Neosho and Sims was rescued and has reached port.

As against these losses which the navy said had been instrumental in disrupting Japan's strategy against Australia, the navy announced the Japanese had suffered:

Sunk—One aircraft carrier, 3 heavy cruisers, 1 light cruiser, 2 destroyers, several transports and small supply vessels.

Severely damaged and probably sunk—One cruiser, 1 destroyer.

Severely damaged—More than 20 ships including 1 aircraft carrier, 2 cruisers, 2 aircraft tenders, 3 destroyers.

The enemy also suffered a loss of more than 100 aircraft, the navy declared.

DEPENDENTS' AID SOLUTION SOUGHT

Congress Tackles New Problem of Service Men.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 12—The controversial $50-a-month minimum service pay bill out of the way, senate and house conferees sought an agreement today on a companion measure providing for financial aid to dependents of fighting men.

The pay bill went to the White House late yesterday after the senate passed a compromise proposal ending a long battle over whether the base minimum pay should be $50 or $42 monthly instead of the present $30 for men with four months of service. Both branches finally agreed unanimously on the higher figure.

Still in controversy was a clause in the allotment and allowance bill under which men with dependents would be given draft classifications and deferment based on the number of their dependents and their family status.

The two branches were in virtual agreement on pay provisions, under which part of a service man's monthly wage would be withheld and, together with a government allowance, given to his dependents.

Daring Story of Coral Sea Battle Told by Navy Flier

Here is a thrilling story of U. S. navy plane attack on Japanese aircraft carriers as told by the commander of an American torpedo plane squadron in the Coral Sea battle to Clark Lee, AP war correspondent.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWESTERN PACIFIC—At 8 a. m. our scout planes loom out of an overcast sky and come aboard. The word quickly spreads through the ship that they have sighted an enemy aircraft carrier and that we are to attack. The date is May 7—five months after Pearl Harbor.

In the room where the pilots of my squadron are seated with me around a large table there is an atmosphere of tension. It eases as we set to work plotting our courses and planning our method of attack.

The pilots' flying gear—gloves, life jackets, helmets—is beside their chairs. There is little conversation and I don't give any fight talk. Everybody knows what we are up against. We hear the fighters taking off above us. Then our turn comes and we walk up to the flight deck where our planes are waiting, already warmed up and with crews aboard.

Young and clear-eyed, the pilots are obviously excited, but no more than if they were going out to play a tough game of football. They dig elbows into each others' ribs, slap shoulders and trade quick, comradely grins. One youngster boots another in the pants when he is slow going through the door. I check them over: Young fliers not long out of Annapolis, warrant officers who recently made their ranks, enlisted pilots, boys who were in college only three years ago. Each of them knows his job as well as it can be taught by hundreds of hours of practice and training.

SENATORS PREDICT VETO OF FARM BILL

Presidential Objection Seen to Surplus Grain Plan.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 12—Reliable senate sources said today that President Roosevelt might veto the annual farm appropriation bill unless a senate-house conference committee found some new basis for compromising their differences.

These senators said they expected a White House veto on either or both of these grounds.

House rejection of a compromise plan for selling not more than 125,000,000 bushels of surplus government wheat for livestock feed at a price of about 83 cents a bushel.

Similar house opposition to a provision requiring inclusion of some $200,000,000 in "soil conservation" payments to farmers before so-called "parity payments" could be made on cotton, wheat, tobacco, rice, or peanuts.

The senate met administration demands on these points three weeks ago when it passed the bill, but the house rejected both provisions. The senate again yesterday instructed its conferees to stand fast in negotiations with representatives from the house.

UNFAIR TO LOVE

By Watkins E. Wright

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

About Paul

"WHAT are you thinking about?" Ruby asked.

"About Laura," said Fred. "She's pretty good at scenes herself."

"Are you telling me?" said Ruby. "If you'll forgive my slang."

"If Laura could be in the vicinity of Ye Old Barn Drama House while we're playing "Goodbye, Honey Chile!" maybe—"

"Fred DeMille, you're up to no good," accused Ruby. She lowered her voice. "You don't happen to know where Laura is now, do you?"

"There are ways of finding out, my dear Watson." Fred chuckled. "How about a stroll among the clover and the corn, before we step into the world of make-believe?"

"I'd love it," said Ruby. She drained her coffee cup.

Presently she and Fred were walking across a field—hand in hand—and humming a funny little song about the city cat that ate the canary.

Joe was sitting upon the porch of the Vaughan house with Uncle Frank when Paul Pennell brought his car to a standstill near the front gate.

"There's Kathleen now," Uncle Frank said. He leaned forward. "She looks a bit worried, too. What do you think?"

"Just tired from rehearsing, I imagine," said Joe.

Kathleen told Paul goodbye, waited until he was driving off so that she could wave to him, and then came slowly up the walk.

"Hello, you two!" she said.

"Hello," the men answered in unison.

"You look all in," said Uncle Frank. "Have a strenuous time of it—being an actress?"

"Yes," answered Kathleen. "But I wish you wouldn't take that tone."

"What tone?"

"As if you were sort of—of making fun of me."

"Good lord, Ducky. I never thought of such a thing!"

"And stop calling me Ducky."

"Have you eaten?" Joe wanted to know.

"Yes," said Kathleen. "We had a light meal out at the theatre—after rehearsing."

"Lizzie's keeping some biscuits and coffee hot for you," said Uncle Frank.

"Thanks," said Kathleen. "I could do with some good coffee. The coffee out at the theater was pretty awful."

She walked on into the house. Uncle Frank looked at Joe.

"Go on in and sit with her, Joe," said he. "I'll go tuck my chickens into bed." He arose and stepped closer to Joe. "Go easy with her, my lad. I can tell she's all keyed up."

"Yes, sir." Joe drew a long breath. "I feel as though I were about to walk on some of those eggs your chickens lay."

"Good luck, son!"

"Thanks, Mr. Frank—I'll need it."

Mr. Frank went down the steps and around the corner of the house. Joe marched into the dining room.

"Mind if I have a cup of coffee with you?" he asked when he saw Kathleen sitting at her usual place.

"Certainly not," replied Kathleen. Then she seemed to slump. "Call Lizzie—she'll bring it."

"I'll go get it myself," said Joe. "No need bothering Lizzie."

When he returned from the kitchen with his cup of coffee, he sat down and gazed at Kathleen.

"For heaven's sake, stop staring at me like that," Kathleen flared. "Do I look like a freak, or something?"

"No," said Joe. "You just look tired, that's all."

"Well, what of it? You've seen people tired before, haven't you?"

Joe shrugged. "Seems to me you're mighty touchy and jumpy. No need taking it out on me—just because you're worried or something."

"Worried! Why should I be worried?"

"You tell me."

"I've been rehearsing for hours and hours," said Kathleen. "And I simply want to sit quietly—and think."

"About your part?"

"Certainly. What else is there I could be thinking about?"

"Paul Pennell — perhaps." Joe leaned forward. There was a tense expression upon his face. "Are you falling in love with him?"

"Stop asking infantile questions!"

"And you stop being evasive," said Joe. He forgot Uncle Frank's advice to go easy with Kathleen. He was upset. He was angry. "After all, if you are falling in love with another man, I have a right to know. I don't want it sprung on me out of the blue."

Kathleen softened. "I reckon you're right, Joe. Forgive me for being so touchy and jumpy, as you put it. I have had a lot on my mind." She gazed across to where a bowl of roses stood upon the sideboard. "You ask if I'm falling in love with Paul. That's hard to answer. I mean, all that he stands for — his theatrical background, his charm and his poise—all appeal to me. We like the same things, dream the same dreams, and well, I might fall in love with him."

"In other words," said Joe, "all you need is a little push."

"There you go," said Kathleen. "Acting mean."

Joe ignored the accusation. "Is he falling in love with you?"

Kathleen looked up. Her gaze was steady as she faced Joe. "Yes, I think he is," she confessed. "You might as well have a direct answer, since you asked a point blank question. He says a lot of things that have double meanings; I mean, he seems to want to declare his love for me, but hesitates."

"Waiting to see whether you ruin his scene or not?"

"That," said Kathleen, "is a downright catty remark."

"Sorry. I sort of feel catty when I discuss Paul Pennell."

Kathleen pushed aside her plate. She rested her elbows upon the table, and looked Joe straight in the eye.

"We might as well have a showdown right here and now, Joe," she said.

"A showdown about what?"

"About us."

"And Paul?"

"Yes—and Paul."

"Okay," agreed Joe. "Only don't let's start throwing things. Too many fragile pieces around."

"This is no time for would-be funny remarks," said Kathleen. "I'm serious, and I want you to be."

"Okay, I'm serious."

Kathleen was thoughtful a moment. "About Paul and me falling in love," she went on presently. "There's no reason why we shouldn't."

"No reason at all," said Joe, "except that you've been loving me for years."

"That," said Kathleen, "was just one of those things." She waved Joe to silence. "Paul has talked to me about having his own stock company some day, and about how nice it would be to have a talented wife for his leading lady."

"Meaning you?"

"Keep quiet," said Kathleen. "And I agree with him. A man and a woman who are interested in the theater—as Paul and I are—ought to build up a fine life together."

"Yes'm," said Joe. "Go on—tell me all."

"And the more I think about it," continued Kathleen, "the more certain I am that if Paul should ever come to the point of declaring his love, asking me to marry him, I'll give it serious consideration."

U. S. Army Engineers Battle Zero and Bogs To Build Alaskan Road

By SIGRID ARNE
[illegible] Press Correspondent

ST. JOHN, B. C., June [illegible] (Acnd)—The first [illegible] that arrived in [illegible] the Alaska highway [illegible] into Dawson Creek, [illegible] 20 a [illegible] blizzard [illegible] degrees. It was 25 be-[illegible]

[illegible] ending out of [illegible]

[illegible] men [illegible] shouted a [illegible] wind [illegible] you sweep—if you [illegible] carried to a frozen [illegible]

[illegible] the field was scat-[illegible] bundles, hornless bags [illegible] and sleeping [illegible]

[illegible] of [illegible] rang [illegible] night as the men [illegible] fur-lined parkas [illegible] in the frozen ground [illegible] poles. In two hours [illegible] were up.

That was the start of one of the most amazing battles man has ever waged with the frozen north and [illegible]

The United States and Canada had just signed an agreement to permit the United States to push through a highway to Alaska at double-quick [illegible] It may cost 25 millions or 50 millions. It's impossible to say now because the country is so wild and so unknown. The United States will keep up the road for six months after the war. Then the road reverts to Canada and she will maintain it.

Road Needed—Now

But now—this hour—that road 1,459 miles long is needed to keep up the flow of planes [illegible] guns to Alaska, fighting and hoping for the final mile of road snaking into Fairbanks.

At the south end a railroad comes as far north as Dawson Creek, 550 miles northwest of Edmonton, Canada. Then there's a so-so dirt road 60 miles north to Fort St. John. That's where the Alaska highway starts.

Now it's rolling out from Fort St. John across bush country so thick that only a man can squeeze between the tree trunks. There are no roads. Just rolling [illegible] bush and treacherous bogs 25 feet deep in places.

That night of March 9 the bogs were frozen stiff. That night railroad men all over the United States worked all night to clear right-of-way for American freight trains thrown together for Dawson Creek.

There was just four weeks, maybe six, for American army engineers to do a fantastic job. They had to shove through a huge supply caravan for an engineers' camp at Fort Nelson, another 250 miles north of Fort St. John. There was no road but trappers' told army officers there was a [illegible] trail that would take the American trucks through.

But—but—when the thaw came around April 1, the trail would melt into bog.

The struggle began at the railhead in Dawson Creek where Col. F. [illegible] Mueller, quartermasters corps, checked the freight rolling in from the States. The trains rolled to a stop, and impatient army engineers pried open freight cars and rushed the goods onto trucks that started rolling immediately—whether alone or [illegible] 250 mile trek or in [illegible] caravans.

Never Stopped Rolling

For six weeks the trucks never stopped rolling except to reload and refuel.

The first day the thaw came was about April 1 and Nelson was still incomplete. Men worked until they gasped. At dusk long strings of lights blazed over the Dawson Creek railroad yards. Men slaved on through the night, their backs groaning, their ears freezing.

The first thaw came. Four-inch planking was rushed to the Peace river to hold the road across it.

Then like an answer to a prayer—and the men were praying—there came a terrific freeze. The Peace river stiffened, the trucks rolled on day and night.

The road went out on April 15. But the encampment up north was done, and safe. The men were there. The huge road machines were in. Gas for the machines and food for the men. They were cut off for 150 days—but they had what they needed.

Now Nelson can be reached only by plane from Fort St. John. But the planes whir back and forth. The men have just flown a big road grader north.

After that frozen trek in March tired men sat down all along the line, their eyes blood-shot from lack of sleep, and took count.

They hadn't lost one truck, not one man in the mad six weeks' dash.

There was just one little jeep at Dawson which should have been at Nelson. It was caught midway by the thaw and had to turn back.

There was just one crate of paper handkerchiefs missing—and over a million dollars worth of goods had been raced across the tundra.

Edison Church Debt Free Year After Finished

Special to The Star

EDISON, June 12 — A new church built and ready for services within approximately a year after the old structure was destroyed by fire and the new building clear of debt within another year is the unusual record accomplished by the congregation of the Edison Methodist church.

Having raised sufficient [illegible] to pay the debt still owed, the congregation held dedication services last Sunday morning. The present structure takes the place of the frame building which burned on Easter Sunday two years ago.

Soon after the fire a committee consisting of Rev. W. [illegible] Williams, pastor, Roy Graham, Ronnie Wingett, Raymond [illegible] and Ross and James King began soliciting for subscriptions to rebuild the church. [illegible] Harvey succeeded Mr. Graham as chairman and remained in that position during the entire time the church was being built.

On May 18, 1941, the church was ready for services and a consecration service was held, the sermon being delivered by Dr. H. Lester Smith, bishop of the Cincinnati area of the Methodist church.

In scarcely more than a year the congregation has raised sufficient funds to completely clear the building of debt, and that having been done, dedication services were planned.

The call to worship given by Rev. Allen [illegible] was [illegible] by responsive reading by the congregation. Dr. H. W. [illegible] [illegible] superintendent [illegible] sermon preceding the dedication exercises, during [illegible] short talks were given by Dr. Bruce T. Riley of Fredericktown and Rev. W. [illegible] McWilliams [illegible] Galena, both former pastors. A vocal solo by Mrs. George Baker and the closing prayer by Rev. [illegible] Huffman concluded the service.

BUCYRUS, June 12—The newly completed training camp at the fairgrounds was assured an adequate water supply when city council, in a special session, voted to complete a water circuit at the camp and lay additional pipe.

It needs V.E.P. the new Alloyed-Oil that ADDS 50% TO THE LIFE OF YOUR MOTOR

New V·E·P· Alloyed-Oil will make the engine of your car last half again as long as it would with ordinary oil

YES SIR! SCIENTIFIC TESTS, plus over five million miles of road travel, prove it! V. E. P. Alloyed Oil gives you a 50% bonus in motor life over what you'd get with any straight mineral oil.

IN OTHER WORDS, MISTER, your motor will be in as good shape at the end of the next 30,000 miles with V. E. P. as it would have been at 20,000 using ordinary oil. And meanwhile you've pocketed real savings in gasoline and oil, too.

V.E.P. SAVES WEAR

1. THREE TIMES THE RESISTANCE TO "SHOCK" caused by quick starts, high speeds, motor braking . . . to extreme heat and pressure of today's motors.

2. AVOIDS "FIRST-MINUTE" DAMAGE. A "magnetic-like" film of V.E.P. clings to cylinder walls overnight . . . gives protective lubrication during critical warm up period.

3. RIDS YOUR MOTOR OF HARMFUL SLUDGE, CARBON, VARNISH. "Housecleans" motor . . . then keeps it clean. Protects against harmful acids caused by products of combustion.

SAVES GASOLINE

V. E. P.'s cleaning action frees valves and piston rings . . . gives you a tighter seal . . . saves lost compression . . . turns gasoline into power instead of waste. A clean motor is a more efficient motor, a more economical motor.

SAVES OIL

By freeing valves, tight rings, unplugging the slots in your oil rings V. E. P. prevents burning of excessive oil in combustion chamber, conserves it, instead.

Majority Found Opposing Calling of 18-19 Youth Into U. S. Armed Forces

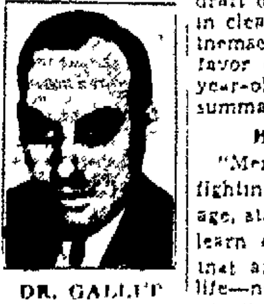
By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 12—Should 18- and 19-year-old boys be drafted?

In many homes and on many school campuses in the [illegible] that question is uppermost as the young men in those age brackets prepare to register for the draft two weeks from Monday.

Washington has not yet decided whether to draft them after they have registered. The final decision rests, of course, with the military authorities who are best able to judge at what age a man makes the best soldier.



DR. GALLUP

But if the decision were put up to a vote of the public in a national referendum, young men in the 18-19 age bracket would not be inducted into service at this time.

The nation's attitude is shown in an Institute survey from coast to coast, with the following results:

Favor Drafting Men 18-19	42%
Opposed	52
Not Voting	6

This is the only plan connected with the draft which the American people have resisted. They were in favor of drafting men aged 21 to 45 many months before congress voted the draft in 1940.

Arguments for and against the draft of young men are presented in clear cut fashion by the voters themselves. On the one side—in favor of drafting the 18-and-19-year-olds—the arguments can be summarized as follows:

Best Fighting Material

"Men that age make the best fighting material. They have courage, stamina, and alert minds that learn quickly. Moreover, men of that age have no fixed stake in life—no responsibilities of family or business. It would not disrupt the nation's economy or social structure to the same extent as would the drafting of those with homes and careers.

"Finally, military training would be good for them; the discipline would make them better men. If they are to inherit the future of the nation they should have a part in the making of it."

"But," interposes the typical voter on the other side," they are too young, too emotionally [illegible] handi- [illegible] day, there are enough [illegible] men to [illegible] the [illegible]

Interest High

From Maine to California interviewers for the Institute reported that people are greatly interested in discussing the subject of the 18-19-year-old draft. The [illegible] con- [illegible]

The [illegible] Philadelphia, Pa., for example [illegible] effect of the [illegible] draft [illegible] man [illegible]. Both of them are [illegible] the grocery clerk.

Men of that age are youth, plenty of [illegible] and that [illegible] makes good fighters.

Said the other: "They are not emotionally ready for war."

Or contrast the views of an elderly voter in St. Louis with those of a woman secretary in Chicago. The former maintains that they took them during the [illegible] younger than that. I don't see why they shouldn't take them now." But the Chicago secretary is afraid that men of that age are still too young to be thrown into war.

"They could do it of course if they had to. But it would make terribly hard men of them."

Physical Requirements Lowered by U. S. Navy

Physical requirements for enlistment in the United States naval reserve have been lowered, according to a communication received by C. F. Silber, local recruiting officer, from Lt. Lewis F. Cobing, officer in charge of the U. S. navy recruiting office.

In many instances men who have previously failed to qualify because of defective teeth and eyes may now be accepted according to the communication. The standards now require that a man who has corrected vision or who has suitable dental replacement may enlist.

Height requirements also have been changed and now [illegible] five feet two inches to six feet four inches.

Lowering of the standards does not include the requirements for candidates for officers training.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, June 13

THE LUNAR TRANSITS having effect on the affairs of this day may be considered fairly fortunate and encouraging, particularly as they bear influence on the personal life. There may be benefits or favors coming from friends, superiors or elders, although it would be well to exercise much vigilance against deception, misrepresentation, distortion or other treacheries in connection with business contracts, writings or legal documents. Shun legal entanglements and fraud.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a fairly prosperous and pleasant year with affairs of a social or domestic nature engaging the attention. There may be benefits or gifts from elders or relatives, but in all associations there is need for alertness against fraud, deception, trickery and dangers from theft or falsity in papers, contracts, correspondence and litigation.

78 Entries of Three Classes at "Y" Dog Show Opening

Event Attracts 125 Spectators; Second and Final Event Scheduled Tonight.

The Y. M. C. A. dog show, the first such event ... in Marion county, drew an attendance of 125 spectators at its opening last night.

Seventy-eight dogs of sporting, hound and working groups were shown. Ribbons were awarded to first, second and third place winners.

O. H. Neimeyer, Marion county game protector, was chief judge. Dr. Bert S Hord judged hounds and Mr. and Mrs James J. Murphy of the Dorsh Kennels at Prospect and Paul D. Mache judged other entries.

George D. Hildebrandt served as master of the show, which was held in the association gymnasium, and Dr. J. F. Kantzer, veterinarian, was on hand in case of need.

Big and little dogs alike turned out at the Y to "have their day." The display began at a fenced-off area in the center of the gymnasium, where sawdust was scattered.

Judging

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, widely known dog judges, judged cocker spaniels and pointers to begin the [illegible]. Dogs and their owners' names were called off by Mr. Hildebrandt and then the dogs were brought into the ring for judging.

Although several dogs were shy at first the attention they were receiving most appeared to be enjoying the whole affair.

A few bursts of temperament ended in nothing more serious than growls, snarls and an occasional lunge.

Mrs. Murphy later commented that "wonders" had been worked for the show in the brief period of time in which it was organized.

Mr. Neimeyer said he thought it one of the best dog shows ever held in Marion. The only one he regarded as comparable was held in 1903 in a building which stood where The Star building is today.

Some of Mr. Neimeyer's own ribbons are on display at the Y.

Entertainment after the show was in charge of Mrs Dorothy Lovett. It included singing by Ruth Smith of Richwood, accordion music by Leona and Anna Mary Chiesa of Richwood, dancing by Carolina Chiesa of Richwood, harp lyre music by Janice Ebert with accompaniment by Frances Haas of Marion and a trumpet solo by Eugene Fletcher with accompaniment by Zenabelle Meehn of Marion.

Mr. Micawber in Washington

THE government's suddenly intensified interest in scrap rubber is fine. The country should be combed for all the old rubber that can be reclaimed. It will be useful.

But scrap rubber is no substitute for tire conservation. The people don't like the evidence that minority interests and a bunch of rabbity congressmen may put off real tire conservation until after the November elections—and longer if possible.

Real tire conservation can be accomplished in only one way. The joy riders and everybody else without a good reason for using an automobile must be prevented by gasoline rationing from wearing out tires. There's no other way to do it. It will be done that way eventually, but eventually may be too late to keep the country's essential automobiles rolling.

This is no job for Mr. Micawber to handle, with foolish hope that something may turn up to give the United States all the rubber it needs. Mr. Micawber should be left where Charles Dickens interred him, in "David Copperfield." For once, the country needs to play safe, not wait for too little and too late to catch up to it.

There is good reason to believe Japan was talked into taking the awful risk of war in the Pacific by German strategists who felt sure this country could not survive loss of its rubber supply, whereupon the Japanese bacon would be saved. Rubber was the most vulnerable spot in the American economy. It invited the sucker punch the Japanese delivered to Pearl Harbor.

In any event, the plotters in Berlin and Tokyo must be grinning from ear to ear as they hear now about wishful thinkers waiting for Santa Claus to bring them some rubber for Christmas so they can keep on joy riding now. If they'd planned it that way it couldn't be working out any better.

Politicians Can't Talk

ONE of the grim facts of life in these times is the way the American public feels about Paul V. McNutt, the federal security administrator. It regards Mr. McNutt wholly and solely as a politician. He never has given it any reason to regard him any other way. His office-holding career has been a study in the precise practices of political art.

This has bearing on Mr. McNutt's widely published crack about doctors being a bit slow to volunteer their services for war. Too many doctors, Mr. McNutt believes, are interested in looking out for themselves. Aside from the fact that doctors, as a profession, have nothing to be ashamed of in their war records, when Mr. McNutt starts talking chesty about any other minority his countrymen naturally begin to wonder about the minority he represents—the politicians.

They wonder how politicians are shaping up in the war effort. Are jobholders rushing to the colors in satisfactory volume? Are they giving up business as usual to break down the doors of recruiting offices? In the case of big Grade A jobholders with good salaries, are they clamoring for a chance to make drastic sacrifices? The answer is, of course, no. If doctors, dog catchers, street car conductors or hod carriers are going to be criticized for their part in the war effort, the job shouldn't be turned over to the politicians, least of all careerists like Mr. McNutt.

Shooting the Wad

IT IS one of the circumstances of this war—an unpleasant but serious one—that the financial problem created by its conduct must be solved by a government that has been swayed by a minority unsympathetic with orthodox capitalism. The situation is beginning to get some of the attention it deserves.

Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan, member of the senate finance committee, has warned, for instance, that it is less important for the government to raise an extra few billion dollars in revenue in forthcoming legislation than for it to preserve functioning economic resources out of which the government can safely borrow. He refers to both private savings and business profits.

In a letter addressed to all members of congress by A. W. Robertson, chairman of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., the company expresses concern lest its continued growth be stopped by the government's failure to insure that growth with a sound tax policy. "The country at large and all its citizens will suffer loss if a company like the Westinghouse company fails through lack of funds to meet emergencies," says Mr. Robertson—and adds: "If it fails, other companies will fail for the same reason."

Unfortunately, with war expenses running into astronomical figures, a plea for caution in soaking savings is likely to sound out of order. It remains a fact, nevertheless, that the country would be in a sick and sorry mess if by accident the left wingers in Washington who have dreamed of taxing private business and the American middle class out of existence were to be permitted to hide behind the war. Perhaps there must be an American revolution along these lines, but if so it should be staged after the war has been won when the revolutionists can be given the attention they deserve.

News Behind the News

Inadequacy of Synthetic Rubbe Production in U. S. Difficult To Explain.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 12—The [illegible] petroleum [illegible] and a process for [illegible] rubber from [illegible] enough rubber [illegible] is difficult to explain.

If it were not officially offered by various government departments over a long period, you would not believe it. It is the only great scandal of inadequacy the government has made during the war, unless you consider the related subject of gasoline.

The government got started early enough. Back in the spring of 1941 a Polish diplomat tipped Leon Henderson's office about the Polish agricultural alcohol plants making synthetic rubber, and there were 30,000 in Germany and many in Russia by [illegible] 1942.

Henderson's office turned the Polish formula over to the agriculture department experts who found the key catalyst was missing. It was so secret it had never been in written form.

Inventor in Rio

The Polish inventor, Waclaw Szukiewicz, fled then to refuge in Italy. Thereafter he escaped to Rio De Janeiro, where Henderson's men eventually found him.

After five months of arguing with the state department over a visa, he came to this country. But all that was done with him and his formula was to install him in a large alcohol plant in Philadelphia to make synthetic rubber on a small scale.

Then after Pearl Harbor, Jesse Jones got busy and Jan. 12 started a synthetic rubber program for 400,000 tons a year. It was to be made from a petroleum refining by-product (butadiene gas) then sent to Akron and other rubber centers to be made into the synthetic rubber buna.

This butadiene gas can also be made from corn, wheat, molasses and many farm products of which we have enormous surpluses, but Jones claims the war production board did not think there would be much alcohol available for synthetic rubber, so this phase was not pursued.

Proposals Blocked

People came into the WPB from the midwest urging that agricultural products be used, but WPB said no steel and building materials were available to build new plants. This western group then showed that it could lay its hands on 80 per cent of the materials in second hand junk shops and idle plants, but WPB would not give them the needed 20 per cent to go to work.

The accepted estimate was that it would cost $26,000,000 for the first 200,000 tons of capacity and thereafter $30,000,000 of plant expenditure to make each 100,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually from alcohol so that only about $6,000,000 worth of new building materials would be necessary for each 100,000 tons, not enough to build the back end of a battleship.

But WPB claimed it would take copper tubing and copper tubing was short. The agricultural people showed that they could use steel and wood for tubing, and concrete for vats.

All that WPB has authorized, however, was the making of 200,000 tons from alcohol by converting distilleries and existing alcohol plants. It would not allow any new plants.

The WPB said only enough alcohol was available to make 200,000 tons of rubber, but the westerners promised they could make enough more in four or five months to stop all talk of a nationwide gas rationing.

By this time Jones had stepped his plan up 200,000 tons and it then called for 800,000 tons a year—not enough. His limiting factors too are all priorities, not petroleum.

By the end of this year he thinks he will have 100,000 tons capacity ready, by next July 250,000 tons and two and a half years from now he will have 700,000 tons. (He does not even promise to produce that much in 1943, only that he will have capacity for that production by the end of that year.)

His plants cost more than three times what the alcohol systems cost—about $100,000,000 for each 100,000 tons capacity. Furthermore, the alcohol plants can be built in eight months, the Jones petroleum plants require 15 to 18. Costs of the synthetic rubber itself is immaterial because all are within reason and what we want is rubber at any price.

After all these months of arguing, the experts at WPB say that if everybody does all that is planned, there still cannot be a

Spying on Nazis Tough Job

Germans Use Elaborate Precautions To Muzzle Foreign Agents.

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF
Wide World Features

(Alvin Steinkopf formerly was a member of The Associated Press Staff in Berlin. He recently returned to this country in the exchange of war prisoners with the Axis.)

* * *

SPYING on Germany isn't the romantic business it was just a short while ago.

The war is getting too bitter. Tempers are short. The decisions of German military courts harsh and swift.

Not so long ago a few well-placed cocktails at a diplomatic tea might loosen some Nazi tongue. A little flattery might induce "someone close to the foreign office" to boast what he was going to do to Norway if it didn't behave. Or a clever woman might persuade some reserve officer to brag indiscreetly about "the secret weapon."

A Bad Slip

In fact, one such slip a year ago was broad and precise enough to give Russia a pretty straight tip that the Nazis were doing their diplomatic best to organize a "world front" against communism." The unwary German official who made the slip barely escaped with his head, and was yanked from a soft bureaucratic post to the east front as a common soldier.

Convictions and executions for spying have been frequent. The men whom Hitler trusts are getting fewer and fewer, and they become increasingly taciturn.

Somewhere in Germany there may be a new Mata Hari, a glamorous creature able to wheedle secrets out of romantically inclined officers. But to a seasoned observer it does not seem that she is going to have much of a chance to distinguish herself. There may be some playboys in the Nazi movement from whom the right girl might coax a little information. But such playboys aren't the generals nor do they have responsible posts in the war machine. The modern German general is about as crusty, hard-bitten and realistic a customer as it is possible to imagine.

There are, doubtless, hundreds of spies inside Germany, engaged in the most dangerous of occupations. But it would be easy to exaggerate the role they are playing, or to attribute too much importance to their influence on military decisions.

Mostly Part-time

There are, beyond question, a few full time spies, recruited in responsible quarters working for the defeat of Hitler. But most of the spies might be called part-time workers. Individuals who hate Nazism, or unprincipled persons who don't think much of Hitler one way or another, but who are willing to sell vital information for a price.

What kind of information do these humble spies uncover? Usually it is of the most unromantic nature.

One individual whom this writer has reason to suspect is doing nothing more exciting than counting coal trains. He lives near an important railway line over which coal is transported from Germany to Italy. Italian industry is completely dependent on Germany for coal. And if the United Nations knew approximately how much coal Italy is getting they could make a pretty shrewd guess as to the capacities of Italian armament and munitions industries.

Railroads Betray Secrets

Watching the German transportation system betrays other war secrets. We were informed in Berlin, although we could not be quite sure, that similar humble spying on railways first revealed to the United Nations that the shipyards of Danzig started assembling submarines after increasingly heavy British raids disturbed building operations at Kiel and other western German ports.

Constant shipment of war materials eastward first led to the suspicion that Germany was withdrawing some of its industry from the Rhine valley. Destructive British raids on Rostock and Luebeck have been the answer.

The professional spy inside Germany sets himself up as a clearing agent for a lot of little tipsters. He puts the dabs together, reads newspapers with particular attention to what might be concealed between the lines, and listens to the speeches. How he gets the report out of the country is his own business which, at the moment, shouldn't be betrayed.

To the suspicious German official almost every foreign is a spy. And news correspondents particularly were regarded dubiously.

Curious in this respect was the high moral attitude taken by the United States embassy in Berlin before Hitler extended his war to the western hemisphere. The embassy gave no military information to any British agency.

Despite the stringent regulations it's fairly easy to obtain bits of important military information in Germany.

But the spy's job is twofold. First he must get his facts. Then, equally important, he must get them out of the country and to their destination promptly.

A good example of how the spy service of Germany's enemies lately did half its job, but was outwitted in the performance of the second half, is presented by the escape of the battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and the cruiser Eugen from Brest.

Brest is as full of spies, amateur and professional, as any European city. When the three German men-of-war steamed from port perhaps hundreds of Frenchmen knew that the long awaited escape through the tight English channel was probably being undertaken. In evening hours the news spread through the city and even to other French communities.

But the spy services bogged down in delivering that news to England.

The maneuver of bringing home those three warships was more than a first rate military accomplishment. It was preceded by week of patient work by the counter-espionage service. Civil and military police had patiently hunted out most of the illegal radio stations which could get a message to England. The wave lengths ordinarily used by others were jammed. For days in advance there had been the most painstaking control of messages leaving Brest by letter, telephone or telegraph. Then on the critical night Brest, so far as communications were concerned, was cut off from the world.

Deliberate slowing down of all communications, and of travel, is a part of the broad counter-espionage program. The idea is that hot news cools off quickly, and that a delayed report is as useless as no report at all.

"THE MOON IS DOWN"

Gasoline in Australia

Cars Make Own Supply Out of Charcoal.

AUSTRALIA has developed an answer to the gasoline shortage, which is acute there. W. B. Courtney, Collier's Weekly correspondent in the Antipodes, reports that each Aussie automobile is now equipped with a contrivance called a "gas-producer" which manufactures its own gas as it travels along the road.

"In appearance," he cables, "it's a blend of kitchen range, moonshine pot still, and mail order comfort station. In the United States you take charcoal to a picnic to cook with. In Australia charcoal takes you to the picnic and home again. Gasoline ration here is one to five gallons a month, depending on car size.

"A gas-producer is a burner for converting various fuels into gases that will burn in the spark-plugged cylinder heads. Charcoal is used here because it's the cheapest substitute. Four tons of timber will make one ton of charcoal. One ton of charcoal burned in a gas-producer will give the same mileage as 176 gallons of gasoline.

Sold at Stations

"However, charcoal gas has only about 55 per cent of the road efficiency of gasoline in pick-up and hill climbing. Charcoal costs about a dollar for 45 pounds, which is the single filling capacity on the average car. You carry extra bags on long trips although charcoal is now sold at almost all filling stations. People going on trips into the remote outback carry axes and portable charcoal makers.

"The gas producer is really a portable furnace. Its weight adds greatly to the strain on the rear springs and you have to drive carefully over bumpy roads. It's practically all firebox save for the water tank under the top. You throw in paper and kindling, just as in a kitchen stove, then dump in the whole bag of charcoal and light it from below.

"The burning charcoal in the airtight box gives off carbon gas. By air sucked in from outside and from steam given off from boiling water, oxygen is combined with the carbon gas, reducing it to carbon monoxide gas. The gas is drawn through an elongated intake pipe into the cylinders where it's compressed and then ignited by the spark plug, exactly like gasoline vapor.

"Motorists who have gas-producers buy gasoline too, not only for supplementary use in a pinch, but for starting. Gas from the producer does not begin to reach the cylinders until suction draft through intake is created by running of the motor. Gasoline can be dispensed with entirely if an electric blower is attached to the producer to push the gas through as soon as you step on the starter.

"Some blowers whine and howl like sirens. In many neighborhoods people used to rush to the shelters, thinking they were air raid sirens. Most private owners have their gas-producer attached to the rear of the car, but farmers are more apt to carry it on a small trailer so that the producer can be switched from car to truck and even to the farm light plant and other engines."

"Well, what if he didn't? I don't see you getting to first base, either!"

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Sunday, June 12, 1932.

The United Ancient Order of Druids held its 82nd annual state convention here and elected Joseph Weiber of Newark delegate from Ohio to the national convention in New Orleans and August Held of Columbus and H. L. Wade of Marion, alternates.

A basket dinner was held at the home of Mrs. Emma Almendinger of Prospect in celebration of her birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Catherine A. Reed celebrated her 86th birthday anniversary and in honor of the occasion Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davis of Bellefontaine avenue entertained at a family dinner.

Twenty-three years of work among children of the junior department of First Presbyterian church was terminated by Mrs. Jonas Concklin, 80, of North State street when she retired as superintendent. The occasion also marked the farewell of George Robertson, 83, who had been an active member of the church 47 years, especially in junior department work with Mrs. Concklin. Mrs. Concklin had been a member of the church 55 years. Mr. Robertson was to leave Marion within a few days to live with his two sons, one in Detroit and another in Maryland.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Monday, June 12, 1922.

The toll of dead from a tornado which swept through Buckeye Lake park near Newark Sunday continued to mount. The known dead were Byron Hill, M. Siegel and Mrs. Lyda Whorie of Columbus and it was believed five other bodies were buried beneath the wreckage.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Humphrey of Henry street.

It was announced that wage reductions estimated at not exceeding $40,000,000 for 350,000 additional railway employes the carriers sought to lower through the railroad labor board were expected to issue from the board within a few days. The new decision would make a total of $150,000,000 to be cut from the annual payrolls. The bulk of those in the proposed new cut would hit railway clerks numbering approximately 200,000.

It was announced that the Greenwood, State Street, Davids Street and Lincoln School buildings were to be used as bundle stations for receipt of spare clothing to help clothe the destitute people of the near east. The collection was to be made on June 21 and 22, set aside as "bundle days."

A linen shower was given by Mrs. Claude L. Dayton at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brenner of South Main street, in honor of Miss Linconia Cheney, whose wedding to Dr. Herbert Jacobs of New York City was to be an event of June 29.

Members of the Wide Awake club motored to the country home of Mrs. Charles Chapman where they spent the day as her guests with Mrs. J. P. Allen as assisting hostess.

Measures introduced into city council in a move to reduce the pay of the various municipal departments and also reduce the number of men in the police and engineering forces were defeated when Councilman William E. Coler changed his previous stand and voted against them.

Britain Carries On

War Record Speaks Louder T Words but It's Pleasant To Ac a Few for Good Luck.

MR. E. D. A. HERBERT of the Hotel Regis, New York, a Briton, seems t that some of my readers may have acq a wrong impression from a column I ence about British magazines and the a tisements therein, especially the men's ing ads.

He thinks it might be assumed from reference that English tailors and outf are still continuing to offer their custom trousers and coats in pre-war styles. He that this is, quite definitely, not the case.

"The simple fact is that tailors and outf are continuing to use blocks and stereos before the war, for the purpose of their rent advertising, as it is virtually imposs to obtain either the material or the labor sary to produce blocks under wartime co tions in England," remarks Mr. Herbert.

He then develops a point that I am to present not only because of its inte but because the same situation may apply on in this country. It is the reason advertisements. In discussing the British cations, I was impressed mainly by their to carry on with such fortitude under w ditions and did not attempt to draw clusions from that fact, as Mr. Herbert to think, but I did not give the explan offers. It is as follows:

"AS to the number of advertisements continue to appear in British pe urging the public to buy certain artic which there is a very short supply, or are practically unobtainable, I might say many advertisers are continuing to take in newspapers and other periodicals with full knowledge that their expenditure ca be immediately justified.

"But they regard it as important to cont to advertise on a limited scale, firstly, the object of retaining their good will the public and, secondly, in order to pro a measure of financial support to make sible the continued publication of periodicals. For the reason that I have cated above, namely, the impossibility of taining the blocks under wartime condit in England, many of these advertisements identical with those that appeared before war.

"From the point of view of return on vertising expenditure, and particularly, that of the undesirability of creating a d in the public mind for goods that it is not sible to supply, there is no justification for advertising, but, nevertheless, British adve ers feel that they must play their part in tinuing to keep the flag flying."

MR. HERBERT says he is not in any connected with British newspapers does not do any advertising in any of th but is just an ordinary citizen of Britain. terested only in correcting any misundersta ing that might arise in the minds of any of readers regarding the earnestness with w every man, woman and child in Britain faced, and will continue to face the pre crisis.

I am inclined to doubt that on the re of British people to date any Americans going to question their earnestness and I t that any misunderstanding of anything I h written is entirely in the mind of Mr. bert. In fact, I think that all Britons come to the United States are super-sens on comment on their nation, even when all in good humor.

They must learn that it is an old Amer custom in the closest of partnerships, deep affection and loyalty prevailing on sides, for each member of the firm to o sionally exercise the privilege of making cr about the others, but that this in no way we ens the strength of the combination aga outsiders or diminishes the love of one par for the other.

Sale of 57 Houses on Site Recommended

Careful studies of the houses within the borders of the Scioto Ordnance Plant have been completed, and decisions have been reached regarding moving or salvaging the buildings, officials reported today.

There are 89 farmhouses on the site, 57 of which are within the actual operations zone.

Those in the operations zones either will have to be moved or salvaged, and a study was made both by Holabird & Root, architect-engineers, and the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., to determine what houses could be moved economically for occupancy by war workers. Likewise, careful studies were made of the houses outside the operations zone to determine what buildings could be repaired at reasonable expense to make them desirable homes for workers.

As a resilt of the studies, it was recommended to the area engineer that 57 of the houses be disposed of, the study having indicated that the cost of moving or repairing the others to make them attractive to war workers would be nearly as expensive as building new houses.

It is expected the land acquisition office will offer the 57 houses for sale to salvagers under terms to be decided on by that office.

Some Evidences Of Growing Population

More and more as Scioto Ordnance Plant construction activities expand, Marion residents are beginning to feel the effects of the population growth made necessary by the huge plant.

Probably the most noticeable change is on Marion streets, where a year ago most of the people whose business activities kept them in the downtown district would go strolling down the sidewalks speaking to nine out of every ten persons they met. This was because they knew virtually everyone that frequented the downtown district. Nowadays, there are about three times as many people on the sidewalks and businessmen's eyes flit from person to person as they go walking along trying to single out the comparatively few persns they know. It's really quite a chore to walk four or five blocks through the business district and get a "hello" said to everyone you know.

However, most people in the business area have found a happy solution to the problem. The newness of having new families in town is wearing off, and they're offering a "good morning" or "good afternoon" to anyone who'll glance in their direction. They've found that most of the newcomers appreciate the courtesy and respond readily.

Early in the evenings, larger groups than Marion ever had before in the downtown district assemble at various points to rest, visit and enjoy the coolness of the outdoors. The courthuse esplanade and the stone wall around the postoffice are among the favorite assembling centers.

Meanwhile, a number of Marion organizations are making an effort to interest the new residents in local activities.

Naturally, there are some few inconveniences along with the advantages of having the city's population swell rapidly. One problem is the scarcity of houses and apartments for rent. Another is the jam at restaurants occasionally. One man reported he tried to get a water cooler installed a few days ago and was informed that the ordnance plant had exhausted the present local supply. Telephone lines are kept much busier than before. Frequently there is a delay in getting long distance calls placed to outside cities. However, the companies affected by these shortages report that Marion residents seem fully aware of the fact that these minor inconveniences must be charged up to the war effort, and that there is a minimum of grumbling about them.

194 Pieces Of Machinery Used

The following stories are among those published in this week's issue of The Scioto News, weekly paper published for distribution among war plant workers.

MASTER MECHANIC BUSY

Master mechanic's office is located on Lykens road. They have, at present, a fraction of five-hundred operating engineers employed. Thirty-seven caterpillars and 14 graders are only a few of the 194 pieces of equipment in operation.

These machines are kept in repair by a splendid group of mechanics, who are doing a good job. They hope to have a well-equipped shop soon and speed up the mechanical work.

A welding shop is in operation under the watchful eye of Rex Vaughn who has a fine group of men working under him.

James Fraser, master mechanic, states that the mechanical and welding departments will be located in new quarters very soon.

The following workmen are employed by the master mechanic: Caterpillar foreman, Fred Harris; cranes and shovels foreman, Cliff Laramie; welding foreman, Rex Vaughn; Stuart Rutledge is in charge of pumps and Harry O'Dell has charge of all saws.

Grease foreman William Candek keeps all the equipment running smoothly on the job.

GIRL FLIER

Carol Pelton, 20, is now entering her last flight instruction for solo rating in a small Piper Cub at the Marion City airport at present. Carol is one of three telephone operators for Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. offices.

She expects to get her wings by June 30. She claims that she likes flying because of the airy "feeling of safety up there," and says "my brother and I are good competitors." Carol's brother, Harland, is now in the U. S. Army Air corps.

GOLF TOURNEY SET

Extending the qualifier round deadline to June 22, the golf committee is giving employes another change to add their names to the even hundred already entered in the 36 hole medal qualifier.

Inclement weather has curtailed play for numerous foursomes, according to W. V. Tyler, chairman, but the sooner the scores are in, the better.

Open championships, handicap events, numerous driving, pitching and novelty contests are in store for the members of the league Mr. Tyler declared.

Women golfers are extended a special invitation to enter their names and scores. Wives of employees are also invited to participate. For further details watch the golf bulletin boards located at all offices or communicate with Margaret Gasparek in John Kish's office.

SEES FIANCE IN MOVIES

A thrill that comes once in a lifetime came to Wilma Ehrich of the purchasing department of the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., when she saw in the newsreel at the State theater, Findlay, her fiance, Cliff Phelps, landing in Australia. Lucky girl, I'd say.

MEET AFTER 30 YEARS

When 30 years separates meetings, a reunion is news. H. B. Balkin, estimator and J. C. Blaylock, structural engineer, met in Holabird and Root's office after losing contact for 30 years. The year 1911 was the last time until now that these two men were in contact with each other.

FLYING FORTRESS CREW AFTER MIDWAY BATTLE

waste any time getting into formation for the enemy is nearly at the maximum range and gasoline may be precious. One circle and we are in line.

I take the squadron up through thick weather and we bee-line for our objective. After flying for a while we break out of the clouds into perfect, clear weather, a cloudless blue sky and a bluer sea.

At the point where we expected to contact the enemy there is nothing but unbroken sea beneath us. We continue steadily northward, hoping to find him before the shortage of gasoline forces us to turn back.

Finally I see specks which steadily grow into ships. We all have a few feeling of tenseness that lasts until we are actually in action. Then it disappears. Those few minutes of waiting for contact are undoubtedly the worst.

I take the squadron down fast. I see below only three enemy ships. They are steaming east, with a cruiser off each bow of the carrier and about four miles in advance of it. Very possibly there were other ships—destroyers and cruisers—in the enemy force, but if so I didn't see them.

Cruisers Open Up

We get lined up on the carrier and head straight for it. When we are still about ten miles away the nearest cruiser opens on us. We see the reddish-orange flash of its guns and quickly change course. My heart does a half loop and seems to hang suspended and my breathing stops as I wait for the burst of the shells. Then there are black puffs a mile ahead of us and my heart flips back into normal flight position and I begin to breathe again.

The cruiser's second salvo is so close that we hear the "whaps" of the shells. We swing out away from his range.

My tail gunner shouts over the radio that two "97" fighters are after us. They square away and dive on us from our quarter, coming within 150 yards and then zooming away. To shake them we dodge back toward the cruiser, which again cuts loose. We are rid of them.

We are now about four miles from the carrier. Both cruisers open at us, firing their shells into the sea to throw columns of water up ahead of us.

Meanwhile, the carrier has started a fast circle to its left, running for its life. It has completed about a quarter turn when our bombers suddenly dive on it. We don't see the bombers but we do see their bombs. The next few seconds are indescribable. One instant the carrier is intact. The next it is a shambles as bomb and after bomb rips into its deck. Our bombers weren't aiming to miss.

Bombs Hit Squarely

A bomb smashes the carrier squarely just astern of midships. What must have been a heavy anti-aircraft gun mounting lobs lazily into the air and plops overside into the sea. Smoke streams out astern from this huge wound.

The carrier is still swinging to the left. We duck into the trailing smoke and go in for the kill. A single anti-aircraft gun somewhere near the stern is still firing, but the carrier is already badly wrecked, with smoke and flames everywhere.

I sight on the ship and think: "What a terrible mess." It never occurs to me that there is anybody aboard the carrier. In fact I would be extremely surprised if any one suggested there were people on board. It is just a target. I have the sensation of sitting way off in one corner of the sky and watching myself and other planes twisting and maneuvering down near the surface of the water. In my mind's eye I see the whole scene as from a great distance.

Meanwhile I release my fish and pull out. My plane jumps a little ahead as it is freed of the weight of the torpedo. My No. 2 plane releases, then soars out over the stern. We bank sharply and watch for the explosions.

Two Square Hits

They come almost simultaneously — square hits amidships. The torpedoes throw up spouts of water like a fountain. The water reaches its maximum height in a column then seems to spill over a little. A puff of smoke comes up from the center of the water column. The splashes are different than near misses with bombs, where the water spatters in huge, wide splashes with heavy smoke and exploding gas shooting high into the air.

My other planes push home the attack. As we pull away the carrier already is beginning to settle even though it is still turning. It completes three turns before stopping dead and going under.

There is no feeling of exultation. There is no emotional reaction except relief. I think that this one, at least, is no longer a danger. Its planes can not attack our own carrier. I don't think of Pearl Harbor or the Japanese or anything except that this impersonal enemy has been killed and can not kill us.

Our job is done now, so we rendezvous and head for home. I count the planes. All there. Everything okay. Then I count again and find one extra. But it is an American plane, so we continue on our course. Landing, we find that five planes from another squadron have joined me while four of mine came home with the other squadron.

All Write Reports

Back on our carriers the pilots write individual reports and we find that each has seen a dozen things the others never noticed. Our impressions are disjointed, but gradually they fit into one picture. We ask one fighter pilot from another squadron to describe the markings on the tail of the Japanese bombers. To his astonishment he hadn't even noticed whether they were twin-tail or single. But he can describe minutely the vital area in the Jap engine into which his bullets were pouring.

My neck is horribly stiff and I realize that I have been turning my head constantly from the take-off to the landing. I make a mental note to remind the air crews to take neck strengthening exercises in preparation for battle.

In the wardroom the pilots are chattering excitedly over sandwiches and coffee, comparing experiences and impressions. Later they start playing poker, but each hand is interrupted as somebody recalls new details of the battle.

We have won the first round but the enemy is still near. We learn how near at dusk, when six Japanese fighters mistake our carrier for one of theirs and come in to land. We open on them and chase them away.

We know then that we've been spotted and that there'll be more action tomorrow. It will be — even more than today—definitely and finally a fight for our lives.

Next morning our scouts report three enemy carriers and a large force of other warships a considerable distance away, the enemy having changed course during the night. Our commanders decide to attack despite the distance and again we take off.

I am pleased to find myself much calmer than yesterday and as we fly to our target I plan ways for putting to use the lessons we've learned.

Weather Is Dirty

The weather is much dirtier than yesterday and when we find the enemy he is lying under a thick black cloud apparently attempting to hide. His tactics are partially successful because our bombers and our torpedo planes become separated and some of my own squadron is split. Japanese ships are in now familiar formation with the carrier behind and between two cruisers and several other smaller ships to which we pay no attention.

Going in we fly over one cruiser but he fails to fire at us, apparently believing we are members of his own force. We duck into a cloud and come out just astern the carrier. It spots us and swings into a sharp right turning, opening with all guns. The ack ack bounces us around a bit but doesn't stop us. Neither do two fighters which get on our tails.

Over aways I see two fighters, one a Messerschmitt and the other a Zero, attacking a single plane of our squadron, chasing it right down to the surface. But our pilot keeps going until he maneuvers into position and releases his torpedo in a quartering shot.

The carrier looms up. It's planes are gone and we know they are over attacking our home carrier. Okay. That means we've got to hit him. We've got to hope we get him and pray his planes don't get us. If they do we won't have any place to go home to.

"Our Carrier Safe"

The carrier shows signs of having been hit a few minutes before by our bombers. But it is not smoking much. This ship is even bigger than the one we sunk yesterday and both are of biggest, newest Jap types. We cut loose our fish and they catch him under the stern.

The whole ship staggers and is obviously badly hit. It'll be surprising if he gets home. Again there is a feeling of tremendous relief that at least one more source of danger to us has been eliminated. We didn't see him go down but others of our planes hit him later and left him even more badly crippled.

We pull away through heavy ack ack from the cruisers and start wondering whether our ship is still afloat or has been as badly punished as the enemy vessel we have just attacked. We don't have much time to wonder. Almost simultaneously all our rear gunners sight a flight of at least 10 enemy fighters—Yellow 97's—getting ready to attack us.

Over the radio I scream at the boys to tighten up behind me. Also I scream at a lone fighter of ours which is sitting up at about 10,000 to get the hell down and give us a hand. I don't realize it but later the boys tell me I am cussing a blue streak.

The 97's wait calmly and deliberately go into positions on our quarter and prepare to attack. We get set for the shock.

The first fighter comes in at a steep dive and I see that our tracers are too far behind him. I scream at our gunners to give a bigger lead with their machine guns. The Japs don't come too close, not over 150 yards.

Two Shot Down

One by one they peel off and take a crack at us. Bullets whip through the radioman's cockpit of my number two plane, smashing the gun mount and missing the radioman's head by half an inch. Other planes are hit but not seriously. As each enemy fighter comes down his bullets pelt up the water below us in a series of little sprays.

Then our gunners steady down as we get the range. A 97 flies into our zone of fire and suddenly bursts into flame. It reels over and hits the water blazing. A second one gets the same treatment and they decide they have enough and break off the action. They surely look beautiful—going away.

I figure the Japs must be nearly out of gas and have to hurry home. Now the attack has stopped I realize gas is becoming a serious problem to us. Our indicators are slipping toward empty and we don't know if we'll make it.

One of us doesn't. Only 20 minutes from home the pilot of one of my planes tells me by radio that his gas is gone and he has to sit down. We see him go down on the water in a perfect landing, giving him and the crew plenty of opportunity to get into their boat.

I feel sure they'll turn up later somehow, somewhere.

If they don't we will continue to talk of them just as if they were alive. When some friend from another ship asks about them my pilots will say "they were smoked up in the Coral sea."

We simply can't let ourselves worry too much about death. It may be the turn of any of the rest of us tomorrow.

Our engines are already beginning to cough when we finally sight our carrier. It shows no signs of damage. We hurry aboard. Several of my planes are considerably shot up. One will never get back.

But we have won the second round, too. We begin preparations for the next one.

RAINS BOOST HAY PRODUCTION IN OHIO

Crop Codnitions Reported by Federal-State Service.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 12—May rains that delayed corn and soy bean planting paid dividends in hay and pasture yield, the federal-state crop reporting service disclosed today.

The increase averaged better than 20 per cent by June 1, with tame hay up 22 per cent, clover and timothy 21 per cent, alfalfa 16 per cent and pasture 23 per cent.

The excellent pasture showed results in herds of Ohio crop reporters which averaged 20.8 pounds of milk per cow on June 1, an increase which averaged 20.6 pounds of milk per cow on June 1, an increase of seven-tenths of a pound over last year.

Winter wheat showed better prospects than a month ago and a crop of 39,130,000 bushels—9,000,000 less than last year—is in prospect. The acreage yield is expected to drop to 22.5 bushels, 2.5 bushels below 1941.

The forecast for rye is 1,610,000 bushels, 21 per cent greater than in 1941, while oats production is expected to drop 1,493,000 bushels to 49,881,000.

An indicated barley crop of 1,860,000 bushels tops last year's figure by 72,000 bushels.

The number of laying hens increased six per cent last month and the laying rate 1.7 per cent, sending production to 295,000,000 eggs, as compared with 274,000,000 in May, 1941. Total egg production for the first five months of the year was 1,290,000,000, nine per cent above 1941.

SECOND FRONT

along the English channel far from invulnerable.

Consequently they have been hastening the construction of new defenses along the shores of the low countries and northern France under the direction of Albert Speer, Nazi minister for economic armaments and munitions.

New Railroads Built

A network of new railroads is being built in supporting areas, and in houses are being transformed into pillboxes as units in a defense system apparently depending more on heavily fortified static positions than on mobile tank columns, most of which have been withdrawn to the Russian front.

British military experts, however, say that such a defense system never could stand up under the concentrated pounding from the air to which it would be subjected prior to any landing attempt.

As a highlight in the momentous developments the United States and Soviet Russia, once poles apart on most questions affecting human welfare, proclaimed themselves close partners in two momentous undertakings:

1 The urgent task of "creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

2 The enormous task of preparing "to create a better world hereafter."

Disclosure that Russia's Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov had been in Washington and had reached "full understanding" with President Roosevelt and his advisers on the creation of a second front in Europe came simultaneously with a London announcement that England and Russia had signed a 20-year mutual assistance pact.

A few hours later Soviet Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff and Secretary of State Hull signed a mutual aid agreement wiping the dollar sign off United States aid to Russia and pledging both countries to cooperative effort with Britain, China and other like-minded countries "to create a better world hereafter."

Washington Viewpoint

In Washington, congressional quarters expressed belief that the "full understanding" reached between President Roosevelt and Foreign Commissar Molotov might open bases at Vladivostok to U S bomber squadrons.

"If the Russians give us the right to use those bases, I feel confident that the United States could bring Japan to her knees in a short time," declared Senator Wheeler (D-Mont).

Others voiced the conviction that nothing in the mutual-aid agreement between the United States and Russia would precipitate the Russians into war with Japan while they were so heavily engaged with Hitler in the west.

It was noted, too, that the Russian-British agreement emphasized that it was directed against "Germany or any of the states associated with her in acts of aggression in Europe."

The treaty stressed the words "in Europe" seven times, clearly indicating Russia wanted to be free to maintain the status quo of an uneasy neutrality toward Japan.

Sorely pressed China watched anxiously, with the Chinese press bluntly calling on Russia to strike at Japan now.

In Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's wartime capital at Chungking, the newspaper Ta Kung Pao declared:

"Russia should realize that the Japanese attack on the Aleutians (off Alaska) was a direct threat to Soviet Kamchatka and Siberia. Can Russia stand aside and watch the wildfire spread to her very gates? She must do something and do it quickly."

Similarly the China Times urged Russia to "make the timely decision to join the allies in the Pacific by going to war against Japan."

Talk of a Russo-Japanese war was rife also at Pearl Harbor. Some informed quarters suggested that the Japanese thrusts at Midway and Alaska were the [illegible] to an attack on Russia.

Sections of the British press which long have been clamoring for direct action against Germany [illegible] the storm with high enthusiasm, typified by the London Daily Express comment:

"This is Hitler's worst day."

"Remember Pearl Harbor" Fliers Yell As They Smash Nine Japanese Ships

Officers, Now at Hawaiian Base, Tell of Heavy Attack as Prelude to Coral Sea Battle.

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
AP War Correspondent

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., June 12—American fliers, many yelling "Remember Pearl Harbor" as they pushed their bombers into screaming dives, sank nine and possible 11 Japanese warships and transports at Tulagi harbor, Solomon islands, May 4 as a prelude to the battle of the Coral sea.

Participants in the battle said here today they were certain that two heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, two destroyers and two large transports were sunk. A seaplane tender and a third transport also possibly were sunk as well as numerous small boats.

Aircraft carrier squadrons delivered the furious assault and all returned without a scratch to their personnel.

Devastating as the blow was to the enemy, it was but a sample of what was to come, for one of the officers in the engagement said.

"We gave them a larger dose of the same stuff" in the ensuing battle of the Coral sea, which lasted a week.

Officers Describe Attack

Lieut Commanders Joseph Taylor of Danville, Ill., and William Burch of Paducah, Ky., vividly described the blistering attack on the enemy base 1,000 miles northeast of Australia on Little Florida island in the center of the Solomon group.

Burch said:

"Aboard the carrier we had not heard anything about the little harbor of Tulagi until late one night when word was passed over the loudspeaker: 'Prepare all squadrons for attack on ships in the harbor at Tulagi at dawn.' It was a complete surprise. Our task force had been hunting the enemy in the Coral sea.

"Long before dawn, we were ready and anxious for the takeoff.

"We got over Tulagi in early morning, every plane in position and carrying a full load of torpedoes and bombs. We didn't know what to expect but there below we could see through rifts of clouds the harbor filled with troops and transports."

Taylor told of the launching of the actual attack.

"Well, I sorta figured the Marquis of Queensbury rules were out," he said, "so I said to Bill, 'you hit 'em high and I'll hit 'em low.' From then on every man for himself.'

"As soon as I saw what ships were in the harbor, I instructed the pilots which ones to hit. In a melee there is no time for detailed assignments. We just went to work with torpedoes and bombs.

"The only thing I remember clearly as the dive-bombers pushed over into screaming dives was that each pilot was yelling something into his radio phone. Some cussing but mostly yelling 'Remember Pearl Harbor.'"

Wreckage Fills Harbor

"We did not catch the Japanese exactly flat-footed, but they put up no anti-aircraft fire until the attack had started. By that time, it was too late. Let Bill tell you what it looked like when our boys finished."

"When we completed the attack," Burch said, "the harbor was filled with sunken and burning ships, a few of which managed to crawl to the beach to keep from sinking.

"Nine were definitely sunk, possibly eleven. This included two heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, two destroyers and two large transports. In addition we sank numerous small boats and lighters by strafing. We believe we also sank a seaplane tender and a third transport. The whole harbor was strewn with smoking wreckage.

"And I am happy to say we lost absolutely nothing. A couple of our boys brought back a few holes in their planes, but none of the personnel was even scratched.

"This was the first touchdown in the game at Coral Sea, which lasted a week."

Asked about the main action at Coral sea, Burch said,

"All that I can tell is that we gave them a bigger dose of the same stuff we handed them at Tulagi."

ROOSEVELT AND MOLOTOV CONSIDER SECOND FRONT IN 1942

Packets of information on various countries (on wall behind the President) and a map of Asia and parts of Europe and Africa (behind Molotov) formed the background as President Roosevelt and Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov discussed the urgency of creating a second front in Europe this year. The White House disclosed the visit in Washington.

Hitler's Fight on Church Is Carried On Indirectly

Outwardly There Appears To Be a Truce but German Religious Leaders Are Not Fooled.

[illegible]

• • •

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

NEW YORK, June 12—(W[illegible] [illegible] established [illegible] outwardly [illegible]

But the church leaders have not been fooled.

[illegible] Alfred Rosenberg [illegible] German churches [illegible] German Christian [illegible] Nazi [illegible] Christianity [illegible] Jesus [illegible] Jewish [illegible]

[illegible] German [illegible] to harmonize [illegible] Nazism with Christianity [illegible] Jesus [illegible] church, [illegible] so far as the Nazis are concerned.

Attack Is Indirect.

During wartime the attack on the churches is not open, it is indirect.

The rallies of the Hitler youth organization are arranged for the very hour when Christian believers flock to their churches. The little boy who nevertheless goes to church with his parents is a pariah, an outcast, a "sissy" to his classmates.

Wherever soldiers so insist, they are assigned an army chaplain but unless such a demand comes religious services are not held.

Clergymen are forbidden to visit the sick in state owned and operated hospitals and institutions.

Important festival days if they fall within the week have been called off "because of the war." The faithful fear the Nazis never will permit their reintroduction after the war.

Ministers and priests are forbidden to conduct religious instruction in the schools.

Catholic and Protestant kindergartens where working mothers could leave their children during the day now have been eliminated by the Nazis. It's Nazi kindergartens only for everybody.

The religious press virtually has ceased to exist. Religious editors were told there was such a shortage of paper that church papers must cease publication.

Convents Seized

During the last year, the gestapo has seized an untold number of convents and other institutions belonging to religious orders. The Jesuits, Franciscans and Benedictines suffered especially.

Nuns, priests and lay brothers generally were forced to leave their homes overnight with only a few personal belongings.

The property seized was used either as SS headquarters, as homes for the mothers of illegitimate children, as office space for Nazi party officials, or for similar purposes.

Now as always in history, however, the "Blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church." The arrests of [illegible] Catholic priests, the dramatic [illegible] to a concentration camp of Lutheran Pastor Martin Niemoeller, have not been able to kill off Christianity in Germany. On the contrary, now, during the war, the churches are fuller [illegible]

We [illegible] observe this during our internment at Bad Nauheim. Both the Catholic and the Protestant churches were so near to our [illegible], the Grand Hotel Jeschke, that we could see the worshippers come and go.

In Berlin we had made the same observation.

The Christians of both faiths are just as determined to save their country from the proposed "national church" of which the Nazis are speaking, as Hitler and his cohorts are set upon wiping [illegible] the last vestiges of Christianity.

Recall Talk With Hitler.

I recall a talk I had with Hitler [illegible] came to power.

He expressed the opinion that it takes a whole generation [illegible] he asserted.

[illegible] thousand years [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] I have come to [illegible] own plans for [illegible] Christianity [illegible] evidently [illegible] based on [illegible] racial principles and Nordic philosophy for Christianity [illegible] sagas [illegible]

Britain, Russia and U. S. Big 3 at End of War

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Finally, we have formalization of the thought which long has been in the minds of observers—that the United States, Britain and Russia were bound to emerge from the war as the Big Three who would be guardians of the remodeled world until it reached its majority.

This trio represents the great bulk of the resources and strength of the globe. They will form an invincible, but benevolent partnership.

We used to speculate about how America and Britain could maintain order in a naughty world if they only would combine their vast strengths to that end. Not only has this "impossibility" been achieved, but mighty Russia, which exercises such great influence over both Europe and Asia, now has joined the brotherhood.

That to me is the significance of the Anglo-Russian treaty of mutual assistance and the subsequent agreements between Washington and Moscow. Since America and Britain already were in accord, the three nations now march as one toward fulfillment of the historic eight-point program for a better world laid down in the Atlantic conference between Roosevelt and Churchill. When that plan has been achieved it will have answered the dreams of man since dreams began.

We undoubtedly stand on the threshold of one of the major epochs of history. The opportunity is about to be given us to do more than ever has been done before in implementing the teaching of the Sermon on the Mount which marked another great epoch. We are reaching this opportunity through a valley of tears—but we are [illegible].

Few developments could have given the allied peoples greater courage to carry out the immediate task before us—the whipping out of Hitler and Hitlerism. This momentous agreement comes as we finally have struggled to the crest of the hill and are at grips with Hitler in the decisive struggle.

Out in the orient the Japs, unhappily nursing their wounds from Midway, must be uneasy over the allied agreements. They undoubtedly are worrying for fear there is soundness in the belief expressed in congressional quarters in Washington that the understanding between the President and Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov may result in the eventual opening of Russian air bases to American bombers operating against Japan.

This fear on the part of the Nipponese, by the way, might be sufficient to impel them to attack Russia in the near future, so as to gain the benefit of cooperating with Hitler's drive in the west.

Enlarging on the plans for handling incoming "through" traffic, Corporal Davey said that north bound traffic on Route 23 will be routed on Route 98 from Waldo to Route 30-S, east to Greenwood street, north to Fairground street and west to North Main street, picking up Route 23.

Northbound through traffic on Route 4 will be worked as far west as Davids street.

Local traffic between Waldo and Marion will be permitted until the time the parades reaches the top of the Main Street hill at which time traffic will be routed west across the Sawyer road.

KIN OF MARION COUNTY MAN IN PHILIPPINES

Awaits News of Two U. S. Army Colonels.

W. F. Collard of six miles south of Marion on the Linn road is watching the war news with more than usual interest these days, searching for some word of the fate of the husbands of his nieces, Mrs. Allen Stowell and Mrs. John Irwin of Columbus, wives of two United States army colonels in the Philippines.

Mrs. Stowell thinks her husband, who is with the signal corps, is on Corregidor and Mrs. Irwin believes her husband, who is attached to the 31st Philippine Infantry, is on Bataan, according to a Columbus news report Mr. Collard received recently.

The sisters, who have visited their uncle often, came back to this country in May. Their apartment in Columbus contains pictures of their husbands and General Jonathan Wainwright and in a snapshot album there is a picture of General Douglas MacArthur, like General Wainwright, a friend of the Stowells and Irwins.

The Stowell's son, 18-year-old Allen, will train to become a pilot, spurred on by thoughts of his father and his uncle.

Mr. Collard said his nieces served as yeomanettes at the Norfolk, Va., navy yards during the first World war.

Use of Flag

[illegible] Cautions" in using flags [illegible] lists as follows:

[illegible] permit disrespect to [illegible] to the flag of the [illegible] States of America.

[illegible] not dip the flag of the United States to any person or anything. The regimental color, state flag, organization flag or institutional flag will render this honor.

3. Do not display the flag with the Union down except as a signal of distress.

4. Do not place any other flag or pennant above or to the right of the flag of the United States of America.

5. Do not let the flag touch the floor or the ground or trail in the water.

6. Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the flag of the United States of America.

7. Do not use the flag as drapery in any form whatever. Use bunting of red, white and blue.

8. Do not fasten the flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily torn.

9. Do not drape the flag over the top, hood, sides or back of a vehicle or of a railroad train or boat. When the flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis or clamped to the radiator cap.

10. Do not display the flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.

11. Do not use the flag as a covering for a ceiling.

12. Do not carry the flag flat or horizontally, but always as in a parade, aloft and free.

13. Do not put lettering of any kind on the flag.

14. Do not use the flag in any kind of advertising nor fasten an advertising sign to the pole from which the flag is flying.

15. Do not display, use or store the flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily soiled or damaged.

16. Do not use the flag as a portion of a costume.

17. Do not embroider the flag upon cushions or handkerchiefs nor print it on paper napkins or boxes.

Display of Flag

Rules governing the correct display of flags are given below.

The flag should always be flown or displayed with the stars to the left and with stripes floating to the right.

When hanging with the stripes in a vertical position, the stars should always appear in the upper left hand corner.

On parade the American flag always claims the place of honor—at the right.

When flown at half-staff the flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. Before lowering the flag it should be raised again to the peak. On Memorial day, May 30, the flag should be displayed at half-staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset.

When displayed with a group of other flags, the American flag should be at the center or at the highest point of the group.

When displayed on a staff projecting from a building the field of blue should go clear to the peak of the staff unless the flag is being flown at half-staff.

When displayed over a street between two buildings, the American flag should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street, or to the east in a north and south street.

When used in connection with the unveiling of a statue or monument, the flag should be prominently featured but should never be used as a covering for the statue.

On patriotic occasions, the flag may be displayed above and behind the speaker against a wall or curtain. If flown from a staff, it should be placed at the speaker's right.

In church, the flag should be placed at the congregation's right. Other flags should be placed to the left of the congregation. In the chancel or on a platform the flag should be placed at the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation and the other flags at his left.

When the American flag is displayed with another flag with staffs crossed, the American flag should be on the right, with the staff over the staff of the other flag.

In displaying the flags of two or more nations, all flags should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size.

When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed so that the stars are at the head in the upper right hand corner looking from the foot. The flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground.

To salute the flag persons in civilian clothes should stand at attention and persons attired in military uniform should execute the right hand salute.

History of Flag

When the American flag was accepted in 1777 it had 13 stripes but in 1794 two more were added because of the admission of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union and in 1814 the total became 18. On July 4, 1818, congress restored the 13 stripes and ordered the addition of one star for each new state, such addition to take effect the fourth day of July succeeding each admission.

The stripes from top to bottom represent the 13 original states in the following order: Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Georgia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maryland, South Carolina, New Hampshire, Virginia, New York, North Carolina and Rhode Island. Each state also has its own particular star, Ohio's being the seventeenth which is the first one in the third row from the top.

It is interesting to note that the flag which floated over Fort McHenry and inspired Francis Scott Key to write "The Star Spangled Banner" was used before the 1818 law and had five horizontal rows of three stars each, each row staggered, and 15 stripes.

Other Interesting Flags

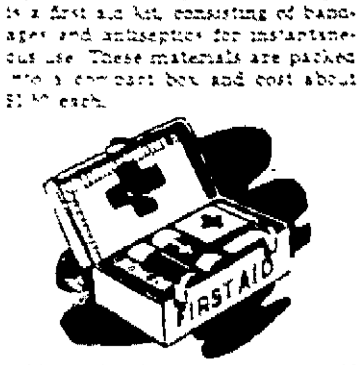
Of interest also is the information given about two other flags familiar to all, the Red Cross banner and the flag of Ohio.

The Red Cross insignia was adopted Oct. 29, 1863, at a Geneva conference and is the reverse of the Swiss flag. The design was suggested by a now unknown Frenchwoman in honor of Switzerland and two Swiss, Henri Dunant and Gustave Moynier, who were active in peace work.

Adopted May 9, 1902, the Ohio banner is the only state flag in pennant shape. The [illegible] formed by the main lines of the flag represent hills and valleys and the stripes roads and waterways. The 13 stars grouped about the circle represent the 13 original states and the circle represents the Northwest Territory. The additional four stars indicate that Ohio was the seventeenth state to enter the Union. The white circle represents the initial letter of Ohio.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Essential in the equipment of every Soldier, Sailor, Marine or Flyer is a first aid kit, consisting of bandages and antiseptics for instantaneous use. These materials are packed into a compact box and cost about $1.50 each.



We need millions of these first aid kits for emergency treatment. They are also used by Red Cross workers, in field hospitals and wherever needed until hospital treatment may be obtained. Even a child could buy one or more of these kits through purchase of War Stamps. Buy War Bonds and Stamps every pay day and invest at least ten percent of your income in these government securities. U. S. Treasury Department

Does that explain everything to you? It does not to me. It sounds to me like each official, Jones, Henderson, Nelson, Ickes, et al, has only explained that somebody or some other thing beyond his jurisdiction is to blame.

They have not explained that anyone who wanted this country to have tires and had singlehanded authority to go about getting them, could not wade through this mass of conflicting authorities and interests, and get them produced.

Salvage Leaders Count on Help of Housewives

The Marion county salvage committee headed by George Al[illegible] [illegible] keep the flow of scrap materials flowing into war factories.

In line with this, the committee has made [illegible] suggestions.

The committee also urged that housewives be tolerant in their dealings with scrap dealers and other salvage collectors.

Joining in this, the state officials in charge of the salvage [illegible] have urged: "Don't get mad at the junkman, for he is the principal commercial channel for getting scrap materials back into war production. He's busier than he's ever been, so don't get mad if he doesn't call at your house the day he said he would."

Tribe Beats Senators, 8 to 6, to Sweep 3-Game Series

Bill Lee and Clyde Passeau Hurl 17 of Cubs' 25 Victories.

By The Associated Press

RIDING high after taking three straight from Washington, the Cleveland Indians play their third night game in four days when they open a four-game series with Philadelphia tonight.

Manager Lou Boudreau named Mel Harder to pitch the Tribe to its eighth straight victory over the Athletics.

Floodlight or sunlight doesn't seem to effect the Indian's habit of coming from behind with a last minute rally to win.

The Tribesmen repeated their two previous nocturnal triumphs against Washington by breaking loose yesterday in a ninth-inning rally to win 8 to 6.

On the short end of a 6 to 4 score in the ninth, the Tribesmen pushed over four runs on hits by Oris Hockett, Jeff Heath, and Les Fleming, two walks, an outfield fly, and a passed ball.

Cleveland's other big inning was the sixth when three runs crossed the plate on doubles by Jim Hegan and Fleming, a walk, and a Washington infield error.

Gromek Wins

Chubby Dean allowed a trio of runs in the initial frame, but tightened up. He was relieved in the eighth, however, and Steve Gromek won his first victory this season.

The Boston Red Sox completed their three-game series with the St. Louis Browns by winning 8-7 on a ninth-inning run which Jim Tabor singled home.

The New York-Detroit game was halted in the third with the Tigers ahead 2-1.

The Chicago Cubs had Bill Lee and Claude Passeau, their veteran pitchers, on the block last winter.

Chicago Stars

Today Passeau and Lee between them have accounted for 17 of the Cubs' 25 vicories in the National league and one wonders where the sixth place Chicago club would be if either or both of these big righthanders had been traded.

Lee won his eighth game Wednesday and Passeau followed with his ninth yesterday in the shape of a five-hit, 7-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils.

It was Passeau's 11th straight complete game and his seventh straight win, although the sequence was interrupted by a siege of appendicitis which kept him in a hospital all last week.

The only other National league encounter—Brooklyn Dodgers vs. St. Louis Cardinals — was postponed because of the weather.

3rd Lions Casting Meet Wednesday at McKinley Lake

The third annual casting tournament sponsored by the Marion Lions club, will be held next Wednesday at McKinley lake on South Prospect street.

Prizes, to be donated by Marion merchants, will be awarded to winners in all events. Events scheduled are five-eights-ounce bait casting, fly-casting, both for accuracy, and five-eights ounce and fly-casting for distance.

All those under 18 years of age must enter the boys' division. All over 18 must enter the men's division.

Events for those under 18 will take place at 3:30 p. m. Men over 18 will go into action at 7 p. m. Ray Balderson and Robert Cunningham, club members, are in charge of the tournament.

In the five-eights bait casting event for accuracy, targets will be 30-inch bicycle tires painted red, white, blue, black and yellow. For this event they will be anchored at random distances from the casting box, ranging from 45 to 80 feet. As the name of each contestant is called, he will take his place in the box. He will cast at each of five targets in the order designated by a clerk in charge.

Scoring is done on a demerit system of one demerit for each foot or fraction of a foot the plug falls outside the targets. If the plug strikes the edge of the target or falls inside, it is scored "0." One missing three feet is marked "3." The total number of demerits for the 10 casts, subtracted from 100, constitutes a contestant's tournament score for the event.

For the fly-casting event for accuracy, five targets will be strung out in a straight line from the casting box, with the first ring at 35 feet and the last one at 55 feet.

Each contestant will be permitted three casts in the five-eighths-ounce distance event for bait casting. The contestant will then be rated on the longest cast.

The same set-up will be used in the fly-casting event for bait-casting.

In addition to the tournament events, the Lions club offers a silver trophy for the largest black bass caught during the year in Marion county waters. All fish must be weighed at Turner's hardware store.

Mr. Cunningham said any one desiring to enter the tournament should contact either Mr. Balderson or himself for participation in any event.

RUFUS JONES DOWNS JOE FERONA TO WIN WRESTLING FEATURE

Martino Angelo in 2 Fights; Wins One, Loses Other by Disqualification.

New York's sepia-skinned Rufus Jones, master of the cranium cracker, turned in his best performance of the current mat season last night at the Armory arena in winning a two-fall decision over Boston's Joe Ferona in the main-go attraction.

Jones won the first fall in eight minutes on a series of head bumps climaxed by a spine-shattering toss across the ring followed by a body press. Ferona, a wizard-like mat tactician, came back to win the second fall in less than three minutes on what amounted to a knockout punch and a body press. Jones, groggy from several terrific jabs to the head, was an easy victim for an ordinary press.

With the match at stake in the third fall, both fighters introduced every trick in the books. Terrific head jabs were suffered by both gladiators, but Jones introduced for the first time during the match his specialty—the cranium cracker. Ability to successfully apply this hold finally gave the dusky Jones the fall and the match. After straightening Ferona up with a hook from the carpet, Jones applied the cranium cracker and finished his foe off with a shoulder stand to win the fall in seven minutes.

Toledo's Black Panther, who is awaiting an army call, failed to show up for his 30-minute scrap with Kansas City's Bull Dog Bobby Castle and consequently Castle won by default.

Martino Angelo won an easy victory over tough Jackie Steele, the Centerville, Iowa, youth in the one-hour semi-final match. The fight ended after only 10 minutes of action when Steele was forced to leave the ring because of three cuts below the eye caused by a series of terrific blows by Angelo.

Promoter Les Fishbaugh matched Angelo against Castle in a 30-minute match to replace the Black Panther - Bobby Castle match originally carded. Fishbaugh, acting as referee, disqualified Angelo for unorthodox tactics.

WRIGHT TO COMPETE IN N. C. A. A. MEET

100-Yard Dash Duel Features College Race.

By The Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb., June 12—Coach Dean Cromwell of Southern California is confident of an eighth straight N.C.A.A. track championship in the annual meet opening at 6:30 p. m. tonight.

Summing up his squad's chances, Cromwell commented "we just happen to have the boys." The squad is the largest entered by any school.

Eagerly awaited is the duel between Hal Davis, California, and Barney Ewell, Penn State, in the 100, which fans figure to be the outstanding race in the finals. Ewell is defending champion, having won the last two years. Davis has a time of 9.4, equalling the world mark.

Ewell also is defending champion in the 220. Other title-holders returning included Bob Wright, Ohio State, both hurdlers.

Between 20 and 25 per cent more passenger automobiles, motor trucks and buses were imported by Colombia last year than in 1940.

Alsab To Be Ready For $50,000 Arlington Classic

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 12—Alsab, Mrs. Albert Sabath's wonder colt, will be confined to quarters for at least a month with the first serious ailment of his colorful and profitable career.

A blind splint, that bony growth on the side of the splint bone discernible only by X-ray, was discovered yesterday on one of Alsab's forelegs. Trainer Sarge Swenke said he expected to have Alsab ready for the $50,000 Arlington classic at Chicago July 25, unless complications developed.

Marion Hawks' Ohio State Semi-Pro Game with Finday Ends in Dispute

The Marion-Findlay Ohio State semi-pro game ended in dispute last night at Findlay with Marion leading 6-4 in the last half of the ninth inning.

Behind 4-1 going into the ninth inning, Marion started off a rally which netted five runs. Joe Roseberry opened with a triple and scored on John Paulus' single. Anderson, pinch-hitting for Bacon, tripled, scoring Paulus. Fritz Walters, diminutive shortstop, belted a three-bagger, Anderson scoring. Max Roseberry belted a hot grounder along the third base line for an easy single, Walters scoring. Hilton belted a long triple against the left field fence, scoring M. Roseberry. Joe Paulus singled to score Hilton before Findlay succeeded in retiring the side.

Joe Roseberry relieved Bacon in the box. He walked the first man, forced the second batter to ground out to him and got the third batter on strikes. With two strikes on the fourth batter, Umpire Swisher called the game because of darkness.

Swisher did not award the game to either team.

League President Charles LeCrone, when informed of the circumstance today, said he would question Swisher. According to official baseball rules, Swisher should have allowed the batter to complete his turn at bat.

Findlay is slated to come here Sunday for a double engagement with the Hawks. The first game is scheduled to start at 1:30 on the Lincoln park diamond.

Arrangements to book a game between a Camp Perry service team and the Hawks is expected to be completed sometime this week-end.

Two Service Grid Teams To Make National Tour

By The Associated Press

[illegible]—Two powerful [illegible] made up of [illegible] ege and professional [illegible] service will battle [illegible] National Pro[illegible] across the na[illegible] this autumn in a [illegible] principally for the [illegible] emergency re[illegible]

[illegible] ce elevens—one [illegible] the "East," the other [illegible]—expect to appear in [illegible] way from Los An[illegible] and to reap a mil[illegible] more for charity [illegible] schedules still [illegible] ked out each of [illegible] of the North [illegible] assured a look at [illegible] of Uncle Sam's [illegible] of the gridiron [illegible] with the mil[illegible] to en[illegible] sort of competitive [illegible] probably will serve [illegible] schools and univer[illegible] might have worried [illegible] football prospects for [illegible]

[illegible] army squads plan to [illegible] Aug. 22, one some[illegible] and the [illegible] coast. Six days [illegible] 28, the West team [illegible] in the professional [illegible] Redskins in the Los [illegible] seum.

[illegible] authorities have not yet [illegible] the coaches, but it virtually is certain that Wallace Wade, famous as coach of the Duke Blue Devils and now a ma[illegible] of a machine gun battalion, will handle the eastern squad. The coaches will pick their squads and select their players.

To make things handy for them the army has compiled a list of 1,500 football stars, past and present, professional and college, who are in uniform now. All the coaches will need to do is go down the list with their pencils and mark "X" now and then when they detect a 200-pound halfback who can run the hundred yards in 10 seconds flat. No strings. No proselyting.

There is no present plan for the two army teams to meet in a grand, climactic tussle after they have finished with the professionals, but it probably could be arranged.

Ray McCarthy, sports coordinator for the army emergency relief, still has to smooth out a lot of details. Dates have not been set for games with four of the professional teams and it is probable that some dates announced at this time will have to be altered.

McCarthy said the eastern team would open against the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds Sept. 12. It will play the Brooklyn Dodgers at Jersey City, Sept. 16 and the Chicago Bears at Fenway Park, Boston, Sept. 20.

After the Los Angeles game the western team is to meet the Detroit Lions at Detroit, Sept. 8 and the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee Sept. 13.

LAWSON LITTLE'S 64 LEADS FIRST ROUND INVERNESS MATCHES

Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, 1941 Winners, Shatter Par by 7.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., June 12—Sixteen of the nation's top-shot professionals teamed to lay down another birdie barrage today in the second round of the $7,500 eighth annual Inverness best-ball matches with 14 of the play-for-pay boys pursuing those tough Texans, Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, the 1941 winners.

The Lone Star state lads ripped six strokes off par yesterday, each getting three birdies, to win a four-up decision over Denny Shute and E. J. "Dutch" Harrison. That put the defending champions out front but they meet the second place duo, Henry Picard and Sam Byrd, today.

Picard and Byrd scored a two-up decision over Herman Keiser and Chandler Harper, the Miami four-ball tourney winners, to get the runner-up spot.

The contestants scored 44 birdies yesterday, but the opening round feature was furnished by Lawson Little, 1934 and 1935 amateur grand slammer, and 1940 National Open king. He scored seven birdies while partner Lloyd Mangrum came through with two, for a best ball count of 62, nine under par, and a one-up decision over Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson. Nelson scored five birdies.

Little sank birdie putts ranging from four to 40 feet and on the long ninth his 15-footer for an eagle rimmed the cup. His own score for the 18-hole route was 64, seven under par.

In the other opening match Horton Smith and Chick Harbert finished even with Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron, each with cards of 67.

MINNEAPOLIS STOPS COLUMBUS, 6 TO 5

Tommy Heath Is "Goat" as Flock Blows Game.

By The Associated Press

The Columbus Red Birds, head men of the American association last year and once highly favored to repeat for the championship, never have hit their old pace in the 1942 season and their 6 to 5 loss last night to Minneapolis was another example of how it's been all along—hot and cold.

Playing the seven-inning first game of a double-header—the second game was called off because of the weather—the Red Birds went into the final frame trailing, 5 to 0. Then they rallied.

Eddie Lukon blasted a three-run homer. Catcher Tommy Heath banged out a second round-tripper that tied the score.

But Heath the hero was soon the goat. The Millers filled the bases with two out. Pitcher Frank Gabler slipped a third strike past Huck Geary but the ball got away from Heath and Geary legged it to first, Wilfred Lefevre scoring.

In other games, the Kansas City Blues dropped a 4 to 3, 11-inning decision to Indianapolis and St. Paul beat Toledo 6 to 2 in a weather-shortened contest of six innings.

Country Club One of 1,000 Links To Sponsor Tourney

Frank M. Knapp, Marion insurance agent, reminded golfers in the Marion area today of Sunday's remote control handicap tournament to be held at the Country club, three and a half miles south of Marion on Route 4.

The tournament is being staged on more than 1,000 courses throughout the country this week-end under the sponsorship of the Indemnity Insurance Co. of America. Competition is limited to Country club members and their guests, Mr. Knapp explained.

Women as well as men are eligible to participate in the tourney. Special handicaps will be computed by Pro Bill Schimmel for all golfers entering the tournament, Mr. Knapp said.

A total of 558 prizes in defense stamps and bonds amounting to more than $4,500 in face value will be awarded in the national contest.

Jimmy Hines, famed professional and chairman of the tournament committee of the Professional Golfers association, is tournament secretary. Last year the tournament was the biggest single golf tournament, attracting 9,983 entrants. Prize winners will be announced the latter part of August.

Chief Chases "Burglar" Alarm All Over Town

Special to The Star

KENTON, June 12 — Police Chief Clarence Sheldon yesterday took a running leap for the police cruiser, and sped to the banking district of Kenton when he heard the bank alarm sound.

At first the alarm seemed to come from the Home Savings and Loan Co., then apparently it was at the Kenton Savings bank. From there the alarm shifted to the Kenton National bank and continued past the First National bank.

Chief Sheldon put on some more speed, faced with the prospect that robbers had stolen not only bank money but a bank alarm. At last he caught up with the offender. A farmer was hauling two pieces of steel to his farm in a truck. Their jangling sounded for all the world like the bank alarm.

WHEAT TRIES RALLY BUT CORN DECLINES

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 12 — Wheat prices tried to rally again today and scored gains ranging from fractions to a cent at time, due to mill buying and short covering, but the market was weakened late in the session by declines of almost a cent in corn.

Feeding grains, of which corn is the most important, were depressed, traders said, partly by Washington reports indicating the administration would insist on congressional approval of its plans to sell surplus wheat for feed. Favorable crop reports from Iowa also attracted attention.

England Vs. Germany

War's Hand Rests Lighter in London

London's Way . . .
. . . And Berlin's

SOMETHING IN COMMON—In London as well as Berlin, they buy their food when, and as they can. But AP writer Edwin A. Shanke says the problem is less pressing in the British capital than in Germany. At left, a London bakery does business as usual the day after a bombing raid. At right, German housewives line up for their supply of rationed meat.

By EDWIN A. SHANKE

(Former member of the Berlin staff of The Associated Press, Shanke went to London after his release from Germany in the recent exchange of internees.)

* * *

Wide World Features

LONDON — British war-time freedom and high morale are refreshing to one escaping the Nazi stockade of repression. You catch the thumbs-up spirit immediately and sense the feeling almost of over-confidence — but that may be due to a change as abrupt as from blackout to dazzling sunlight.

Unquestionably British morale is riding the crest, especially after the recent thousand-plane raids on Germany. By contrast, German spirit is on the downgrade, with Germans clinging to straws of hope for "victory soon" that the Nazis hold out to them.

The average German complains, but is resigned to his lot and doesn't dare do anything about it.

The British cheerfully accept the inevitable — "We've had so many trials and pulled through so many tight squeezes that new ones wouldn't bother us a bit," they say. "Why shouldn't we be cocksure? We know we can take anything Jerry hands us now."

Bomb Evidence Greater

The bombed-out appearance of London was a shock to those familiar with the damage done to Germany by RAF raiders before the beginning of the year. Until then, insofar as newsmen were permitted to look for themselves, there was nothing to compare with it.

Blitzed sections of London have been cleaned up, iron and other materials salvaged, but little attempt has been made to rebuild for permanence. The Nazi always try to repair or reconstruct bomb-damaged buildings immediately, chiefly in the interest of morale.

Recalling the blitz, Britons ask: "Why didn't Jerry come then? He could have taken us."

The average German wonders, too.

It's hard to answer them. The only apparent reason is that Hitler wasn't ready to jump off after Dunkerque and he seems to have believed that England "would be reasonable" and make peace after a period of "softening" from the air.

London More Gay

Leftovers of the blitz days and invasion fears—barbed wire, trenches, pillboxes, barrage balloons, subway sleepers, battered facades—make London's war atmosphere more intense than Berlin's. Yet London is much gayer than Berlin, having more entertainment and far fewer night life restrictions.

Hyde Park orators harrangue crowds by the hour, demanding "get rid of the government," crying for a second front, criticizing fully and freely. That couldn't happen in Germany even if one could find a soapbox.

Here, too, there is satisfaction in being able to move about without having every act suspect. There isn't a porter at every apartment door to report one's activities to the Gestapo. You don't have to listen secretly to foreign radio stations to learn what the other side is saying.

When you arrive in Nazi Germany you get a handout of ration tickets and severe glances. When you enter England you get tea biscuits and bright smiles.

The amazing thing about England to any one who has been in Germany is that you can get along without food-rationing tickets. In Germany you always carry a bundle of them because you would starve without them. Here you can eat a satisfying meal in any restaurant without yielding coupons. At the grocery store or butcher shop, of course, a ration book is needed.

Both countries show the general food pinch in limiting restaurant meals to three courses. But whereas the price in the ordinary English restaurant runs around 70 to 80 cents, it is hard to get by in Germany for less than a dollar. In general, both countries are hard on the pocketbook.

Coffee Rare in Germany

By almost all other measurements, England still is a land of plenty compared with Germany. You don't have to hunt down toothpaste and stationery, for example. Or bribe a dealer in coffee or tea—two rarest articles in Germany though abundant in England—in order to pry loose a bit of his dwindling pre-war stock.

To one from Germany, where workmen stand ten hours at benches and are asked to take a second job and forego vacations because of the acute labor shortage, it is surprising to hear Englishmen talking about "long week-ends" in the country, although munitions workers in Great Britain get only one clear week-end in three weeks.

Transportation appears to be the main problem in both countries.

German passenger train schedules are held to the most urgent business journeys. Even then trains are overcrowded. Here there is fairly lively if sometimes crowded travel.

Although automobile traffic here is undoubtedly only a fraction of the normal, the volume still is far heavier than in Germany. English taxis are plentiful during working hours, but sometimes difficult to find at night. In Germany, the gasoline shortage has stagnated traffic and eliminated taxis except for urgent trips.

A Wisconsin inventor has equipped a picnic table with a pair of wheels to enable it to be moved like a wheelbarrow.

YOUR HEALTH

Teeth Conditions

I have been trying to put down on paper, not for the readers of this column, but for a general medical group, an outline of the examination of the teeth so far as they have to do with the general health of the body—in the first place, what diseased conditions of the body do diseased teeth cause and second, in what way do general diseases of the body affect the teeth unfavorably.

I have been very much interested in looking over some of the examinations given by the Army Medical Boards to see what a proportionate amount of space was devoted to the examination of the teeth and the great care that the Army Board takes in making these records.

I concluded after some study that an examination of the teeth both by inspection and by the X-ray might throw light on the general health of the body.

The general shape, spacing and structure of the teeth indicate such things as general infection (Hutchinson's teeth), diabetes, developmental disorders of the body such as might occur in giantism or pituitary disease. These, however, are rare.

Malocculsion, loose bridgework and bad plates, all suggest incomplete mastication and consequent disturbances of the digestion and nutrition. The Army Boards, I find, stress this a good deal but in my experience, while it seems logical to think that they ought to cause bad health, they seldom interfere with the digestion and nutrition at all.

In fact, from observation of certain colleagues of mine I have almost come to the conclusion that the teeth are unnecessary. These men have complete upper and lower plates which they will remove at meal time, using them entirely for esthetic purposes. They munch and mumble their food with bare gums and in the time during which they have been doing this, they have none of them had the slightest attack of indigestion of any kind and have gained on an average of fifty pounds apiece. I gather therefore that the importance of proper occlusion of the teeth has been somewhat overdone.

Unerupted Teeth

Unerupted teeth, crowded teeth and removal of teeth which interfere with the functions of the body: these conditions have repeatedly been described as the cause of headache, face ache and neuralgia. I have the greatest amount of skepticism that crowded teeth or unerupted teeth ever cause these symptoms. I believe so because in the first place, people who have headaches of this kind almost always have a neurotic background, and in the second place, a great many people have the same condition without having any tooth trouble. In the third place, when the tooth trouble is corrected the symptoms do not disappear in most cases. The public has been oversold on this idea.

However, there is one condition described by Dr. James Costen, of St. Louis, in which owing to a removal of too many lower teeth, especially back teeth, the jaw joint slips out of place and closes up the Eustachian tube to the ear, causing partial deafness, attacks of vertigo, neuralgia and roaring of the ears. This is a syndrome which is not sufficiently well known either to dentists or to ear men, and is a perfectly definite and clear-cut symptom complex which responds to treatment by the proper fitting of plates, in an almost magical manner.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Induces Lillian To See Ronald, and Marion's Mother and Sweetheart Are Reconciled.

THE COLOR left Lillian's cheeks at my words, and there were sudden lines around her mouth.

"You mean Ronald, I suppose?" she said.

"Yes, I do," I returned. "We brought him with us and he is now downstairs. He came down from Yale, eager to do anything he can to help, and is almost insane with grief. Will you let him come up to see you? It would mean so much to him."

She was silent for a minute, her face turned away.

Finally she turned toward me again and I saw that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Of course I will see him," she said. "I only hope that he will forgive me."

"There will be no question of forgiveness in Ronald's mind," I told Lillian reassuringly.

"What do you mean by that," she queried; "that he never realized my opposition to him, or that he is willing to blot out all my pettiness from his memory because of our common grief and terror?"

"A little of both," I answered, feeling my way carefully. "He knew, of course, that you were opposed to Marion being betrothed to him, but I think he believed that most of your objections were based on Marion's extreme youth and the fact that she was just entering college. I am sure he had no inkling—or at least only a faint one—that you disliked him personally."

Lillian's Admission

"But I didn't do that," she said. "I always have thought him a most charming boy."

"But not the one you would have chosen for Marion," I said.

Her eyelids drooped for an instant, then she faced me honestly.

"How well you know me!" she said. "Yes, it's true that I did not think him suited to Marion, but I tried to disguise it."

"You did disguise it from Ronald," I said. "That is what I am trying to tell you. He has no idea that there is any need for him to forgive you for anything."

She lay quiet and thoughtful a moment.

"What shall I say then?" she asked, like a bewildered child.

"Just greet him cordially—affectionately, if you can manage it. Tell him how glad you are that he is here, helping in the search for Marion, and then be guided by what he says. But do not even hint that you ever had any objection to Marion's betrothal except her youth."

Wants Them to Marry

"And I wish now," she said vehemently, "that I had urged her to leave college and marry Ronald."

"Better not tell him that," I said, smiling, "if you do not want to have your words come back to you for eating, when Marion is finally restored to you."

"I won't eat them then," she said. "Will you send him up now?"

"I'll tell him you're waiting for him," I said, "and I want you to see him alone."

She nodded her acquiescence, and I went down to the library where I found Ronald gazing into space.

"Mrs. Underwood wishes to see you," I told him, and piloted him upstairs to Lillian's living room.

"I'll wait here in the hall for you," I said. But it was fully fifteen minutes before he came out again, his face showing that Lillian had forgotten her own grief and terror in allaying his.

"Let us go down to the library before we talk," I said in low tones, and we went downstairs together.

Fully Reconciled

"Isn't she wonderful?" he said as soon as I had closed the library door behind us. "No wonder Marion is so marvelous, with a mother like that. But, you know, I'm a bit bewildered—"

He hesitated, and I knew I would have to help him.

"Tell me, Ronald," I said gently.

"It's only this," he said, flushing. "In the old days I knew that Mrs. Underwood was opposed to there being any formal engagement between Marion and me, because we were so young. But I also felt, sometimes, as if there was something about me she did not quite like. But tonight she couldnt have been sweeter to me if I had been her own son."

"Perhaps that is because she hopes you will be, as soon as you and Marion are through college," I answered.

I'M GLAD THE COOK WANTS US TO SCRUB THE POTATOES, INSTEAD OF PEELING THEM — NOW, THE KIDS DON'T HAVE TO WORRY 'BOUT CUTTING THEIR FINGERS
THAT'S NOT THE REAL REASON — MR. OLIVER SEZ WHILE THE COUNTRY IS AT WAR, IT'S OUR DUTY TO SAVE EVERYTHING WE CAN TO HELP WIN THE WAR
BUT HOW DOES SCRUBBING THE POTATOES HELP?
MR. OLIVER SEZ PEELING WASTES ONE TENTH OF THE POTATO — IF EVERYONE SCRUBS, INSTEAD OF PEELIN' EM, IT WILL SAVE THE COUNTRY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS
BUT MUST WE CHANGE OUR WAY OF DOING EVERYTHING?
NOT EVERYTHING — JUST CUT OUT DOI THE SILLY THINGS USED TO DO BEFORE KNEW THEY WERE
